Canada Is Assured Protection By FDR HINES NAMED

FRIENDSHIP IS STRESSED

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 18. — (UP)—President Roosevelt told an audience at Queens university today that "the people of the United States will not stand idly by" if Canada is threatened by a foreign power.

In an address pitched on the theme of good neighborliness among the nations of the American continent, Mr. Roosevelt spoke ominously of "wanton brutality" and "undemocratic regimentation" in other nations.

"We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the eddies of controversy beyond the seas could bring no interest and no harm," he said. "Instead, we in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and to every general staff beyond the seas. The vast amount of our resources, the vigor of our commerce and the strength of our men have made us vital factors in world peace whether we choose or not."

He Sees Red

BRIDGES IS TERMED RED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Margaret A. Kerr of the Los Angeles Better America Federation testified today that she has seen a Communist party membership card which she understood attested party membership of Harry Bridges.

Miss Kerr charged that contents of affidavits purportedly linking Bridges with the Communist party "leaked" to the west coast CIO leader within a few days after they were forwarded to Washington.

On the day a copy was given to the labor department, Miss Kerr charged, west coast newspapers reported that Bridges "left hurriedly" for Washington. A few days later, she charged, Irvin A. Markheim was threatened because he had signed the affidavits — affidavits whose existence she had believed a complete secret.

Hulls Charges

Miss Kerr testified before the house investigating un-American activities, hearing charges that federal officials advised and protected Bridges when the west coast CIO leader faced deportation as an alleged Communist. Bridges had denied the Communist charges.

She appeared as the labor department surrendered its full file on Bridges to the committee amid reports that committee witnesses have been threatened with violence. In turning over its files, the labor department requested the contents be kept confidential, warning that disclosure might result in violence for persons involved.

Miss Kerr is executive secretary of the Los Angeles federation. She is the "mystery witness" upon

'Flying Governor' On Aerial Tour

Alternating at the controls with his co-pilot, Capt. A. M. Banks of the state motor police, Gov. George H. Earle, left above, waited only two days after getting his pilot's license before hopping off for a tour of Mexico, Costa Rica, Guatemala and Colombia. The Earles, who formerly flew only in separate planes to avoid the possibility of orphaning their four children are shown above with Banks just before leaving Harrisburg.

DETAILS OF SUIT FILED

A bill of particulars, as demanded by Sheriff Logan Jackson, was filed in superior court today by Edgar Hervey, San Diego attorney for the Orange county supervisors suing the sheriff for $100,000 in fees allegedly owing the county.

The bill filed by Hervey, which failed to state specific details, explained that such information was exclusively in the hands of the sheriff. Hervey stated in his document that he had demanded the right to examine the records but had been refused.

Sheriff Jackson promptly issued a denial that demand had been made upon him.

The bill of particulars filed added up to $100,000, although Supervisor John Mitchell, who was instrumental in hiring Hervey, stated at Tuesday's board meeting that the $100,000 was "a fictitious sum" and "doesn't mean anything."

Hervey listed $60,000 as due from the sheriff from profits in the feeding of prisoners, for which the county allows him 12 cents a meal. He listed another $20,000 as profits from the jail commissary. Transportation of patients and prisoners since October 25, last year, the date the fee ordinance became effective, was listed for $5,000, with another $5,000 as expense for such service. The remaining items included $5,000 for serving civil papers and processes and $5,000 for other civil activities.

The bill of particulars bore the typed names of District Attorney F. W. Menton and Hervey, but Menton has announced his refusal to have anything further to do with the proceedings, on the ground that they are politically inspired to harass the sheriff.

CHINESE OFFICIAL IS ASSASSINATED

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Loh Lein-Kwe, Chinese superintendent of the International Settlement police, was assassinated today by five Chinese gunmen believed to be members of the pro-Japanese terrorist gang, "The Yellow Way Society."

The terrorists emptied two automatic mausers and three revolvers as Loh stepped out of his automobile in front of the Central hotel. His chauffeur and a by-stander were wounded. The assassins escaped.

Loh was recently appointed to head an investigation into the activities of pro-Japanese terrorists. Yesterday he issued to the press police records and photographs of Zang Yu-Chin, 350 pound leader of the society, dubbed the "baby blimp."

Settlement police claimed that Zang had taken refuge in the Japanese guarded New Asia hotel in Hongkong. They charged that Zang was directing terrorist activities from the hotel.

Loh's duties as police superintendent included aiding United States marines and other foreign troops in rounding up Japanese and Chinese terrorists.

Movie Actress Made Evans appealed to the board of tax appeals today to uphold her contention that the cost for a tonsillectomy is a business expense and, therefore, an allowable deduction from her taxable income.

The objection to her deduction and nearly $10,000 more was made by the bureau of internal revenue. It held that tonsillectomy, even though deemed advisable for a screen star to eliminate susceptibility to colds, was a personal expense.

Miss Evans deducted a $459.53 doctor and hospital bill on her 1934 income tax return. She said that her voice did not record properly on movie sound equipment when she had a cold; that the operation was advised to overcome colds and, she reasoned, to help her screen career.

She cited the case of Reginald Denny whose teeth were knocked out during the filming of a prize fight picture. The board allowed the cost of replacement to be deducted from taxable income.

BERNARD M'FADDEN TO ENTER AIR RACE

BURBANK, Calif., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Bernard M'Fadden, the publisher, said today he was ready to fly his rebuilt Northrop Gamma in the Bendix Trophy race to Cleveland, O., against veteran pilots in more modern planes.

The 70-year-old amateur pilot set the plane down at Union Air Terminal last night after a flight from Albuquerque, N. M., via Bakersfield. He said he had stopped off at Bakersfield "on business" and had not lost his way.

The plane M'Fadden will race in the Bendix race September 4, once belonged to Jacqueline Cochran, well known aviatrix. Howard Hughes, millionaire flier, set a Los Angeles to New York record in it several years ago.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—(UP)—An old-fashioned welcome by fellow barnstormers for Douglas Corrigan was sought from Mayor Frank Shaw today by a group of the trans-Atlantic flier's old friends.

HULL OPPOSED TO NAZI TRADE PACT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull indicated today that a reciprocal trade agreement with Germany is out of the question unless the Nazi government abandons its present trade policies.

Hull commented on the assertion of Dr. Rudolf Brinckmann, German minister for economics, that the reich is anxious to find an armaments purchaser. Germany could purchase huge quantities of U. S. tobacco and other commodities while increasing sale of German goods in the United States.

He said this government would be glad to find a basis for increasing our trade with Germany. But he added immediately that the system upon which German foreign trade operates is based upon bilateralism and barter, seeking an exact comparative balance of trade between Germany and any other one country.

Hull said this system runs diametrically counter to the principles upon which the United States bases its trade agreements.

CHARGES PRISON GUARD SHOT DOWN CONVICT IN COLDBLOOD

CROCKETT, Tex., Aug. 18.—(UP)—John H. Frazier, 21-year-old convict, one of six convicts who were killed after they escaped from the Eastham prison farm Monday, was shot down while he stood with his hands raised, pleading for his life, Sheriff Archie Maples told a grand jury today.

Maples late yesterday filed a murder charge against Rob Parker, the Eastham prison sergeant in charge of the bloodhounds used to track prisoners in the frequent farm escapes. County Attorney Leon Lusk and Dr. C. W. Butler, Texas prison board member, said Maples told him he witnessed the shooting and that it was a cold-blooded killing.

Lusk turned the information over to the grand jury and Maples went before it today. The hearing was closed.

Dr. Butler said that Maples told him that Frazier stepped from behind a tree at dawn yesterday with his hands in the air. He was about 10 feet from Parker, who had been trailing his dogs through the Trinity river bottoms where the eight prisoners fled when they stabbed a guard, took his shotgun and ran from the farm property.

"Maples said Frazier was begging and praying to Parker not to shoot to spare his life—but that Parker shot anyway," Dr. Butler said. "I am sure that Joseph Wear, chairman of the prison board, will call an investigation of the entire Eastham prison break and the shooting of the fugitives."

ASKS REHEARING IN L. B. TIDELANDS CASE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Attorney General U. S. Webb petitioned the state supreme court today for rehearing of a case in which the state disputed the right of the city of Long Beach to minerals underlying the city's tidelands.

The court ruled that when the 1911 legislature granted cities title to tidelands for surface improvement purposes, rights to undersea properties were included.

In his petition filed with the court's Sacramento clerk, Webb stated the state's contention the city is entitled only to surface rights.

The suit originally was brought to determine whether the state or the city of Long Beach was entitled to drill for oil deposits underlying the tideland areas.

Chamber Group To Discuss Pension

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—The San Joaquin Valley council of the State Chamber of commerce will meet here tomorrow to recommend building projects to the state highway commission, and to discuss the proposed California pension plan.

While the group has adopted no stand on the pension plan, a campaign will be opened tomorrow against the sales tax repeal-single tax initiative proposal, S. P. Friselle, chairman of the council, said.

The present status of flood control in the San Joaquin valley, the need for more CCC camps for fire prevention, and the Kings river flood control project will come up for discussion, Friselle announced.

ACTRESS IN APPEAL TO FEDERAL BOARD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Movie Actress Made Evans appealed to the board of tax appeals today to uphold her contention that the cost for a tonsillectomy is a business expense and, therefore, an allowable deduction from her taxable income.

The objection to her deduction and nearly $10,000 more was made by the bureau of internal revenue. It held that tonsillectomy, even though deemed advisable for a screen star to eliminate susceptibility to colds, was a personal expense.

Miss Evans deducted a $459.53 doctor and hospital bill on her 1934 income tax return. She said that her voice did not record properly on movie sound equipment when she had a cold; that the operation was advised to overcome colds and, she reasoned, to help her screen career.

She cited the case of Reginald Denny whose teeth were knocked out during the filming of a prize fight picture. The board allowed the cost of replacement to be deducted from taxable income.

Big Tuna Clipper Badly Damaged

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Her hull damaged by impact on the rocky beach of San Juanito Island, 900 miles south of here, the fishing vessel Normandie, largest tuna clipper in the world, today was afloat offshore awaiting repairs before being towed back to San Diego.

Capt. Edward Soares radioed that the crew of 23 was safe. Most of them, he said, were on the island. A few, however, were left aboard the vessel in a caretaking capacity.

San Juanito Island is the site of a Mexican penal colony and the fishermen were reported to have obtained supplies at the colony.

Two commercial tugs were enroute south from San Pedro and San Francisco to pump out the Normandie and make the repairs necessary for her trip homeward.

Editor's Widow Dies Aboard Train

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Mrs. Etta Chase Bassford, widow of the late Homer S. Bassford, newspaper executive of St. Louis, Mo., who died suddenly yesterday while enroute to Yosemite National park.

Mrs. Bassford was stricken near Oakdale, in Stanislaus county, while riding Tuesday with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bassford of St. Louis. Mrs. Bassford came here five months ago and was joined by her son last week. They planned to vacation in Yosemite before returning to St. Louis.

The woman's husband was formerly managing editor of the St. Louis Republic and St. Louis Star, and was a feature writer on the Star at the time of his death.

Reich Nationals Asked To Resign

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 17.—(UP)—German Consul G. A. Sakowsky tonight ordered that all reich nationals immediately resign from membership in the German club here because of the club's failure to expel three members of German-Jewish descent. The ultimatum threw the small German colony into an uproar.

Consul Sakowsky had previously indicated he favored such action but had not demanded it and his wishes had not been carried out by members.

A minority of the club's members are Nazi sympathizers.

Several pointed out that Sakowsky was in a position to dominate the colony through his control of passports and visas.

CLEVELAND POLICE ROUND UP "BUTCHER MURDER" SUSPECTS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Police raiding squads went into action today against the "Mad Butcher of Kingsbury Run," confident that although he had eluded them for four years and committed 13 murders, they were on the trail he has made within the past month.

Led by Elliott Ness, city safety director, the raiders made a sortie into the Cuyaroga mud flats early today and rounded up 58 squatters from dismal shacks and hovels. The flats are near the waterfront dump, where two dissected and decomposed bodies, wrapped in packages, were found Monday evening—victims No. 12 and No. 13.

Two paper boxes, into which parts of victim No. 12, an unidentified woman, were stuffed, had been traced to public markets. They had been discarded a month ago.

"The killer's changing his technique," said Detective Peter Marylo, who was assigned to the torso murder cases when they began appearing with baffling regularity in 1934. "For the first time since the two bodies were found in September, 1935, he has left two victims together again. And also changing his method, he has left the heads on the last two."

The river flat raid, announced in advance and attended by newspapermen, was based on the theory that the flats were the logical hideaway for such a criminal, and also to allay the feeling of hopelessness with a demonstration of police action.

The two latest victims yielded many clues to their own and the killer's identity. These were a ragged blue coat, a patchwork quilt, a cracker box, a fish canister and a sugar sack in which the pieces were stuffed; enough skin left on one thumb for a fingerprint and dental work that might identify one skull.

Rancher Held On Murder Charge

MADERA, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Otto C. Hake, 52, Madera county rancher, today awaited a preliminary examination, next step in his legal battle to be freed of a charge of murdering George Collins, his brother-in-law, 14 years ago. He was being held in the county jail here.

Hake remained silent while he heard himself formally accused of the slaying when arraigned before Justice of the Peace H. V. Eastman in Chowchilla late yesterday afternoon. He appeared haggard.

Justice Eastman set his preliminary hearing for next Tuesday.

Defense attorneys said they would seek an early trial for the elderly rancher, who was taken into custody six days after his son Rodney, 22, angry because his father had him arrested for stealing grain from the Hake ranch near Chowchilla, revealed details of the "honor slaying" of Collins in 1924.

Pony Express Will Be Revived

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Two expert riders representing California and Nevada will revive the historic pony express on Sept. 2 between either Reno or Carson City and the California state fair in Sacramento, it was revealed today.

William Tevis, millionaire Burlingame horseman and aviator, is arranging the race and may decide to represent this state. Tevis rode in a similar race in 1923 against the U. S. Army from the Nevada line at Lake Tahoe to Tanforan racetrack in San Francisco, winning by 23 minutes.

Cliff Gardner, the only man who has won the Reno roundup four times in succession, will ride for Nevada.

Hear Motion On Trial Monday

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Hearing on the motion of George L. Cochran, former president of the old Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company of California, for continuance of his trial on mail fraud charges today was set for Monday in U. S. district court here.

In a motion filed by his counsel, Harold Judson, Los Angeles attorney, Cochran contended minds of prospective jurors had been "seriously prejudiced and influenced" against him by circulation of a booklet, "The Pacific Mutual Debauch."

Judson asked that the trial, originally scheduled for Sept. 6, be deferred until October, or later, pointing out his client was in ill health and could not withstand the summer heat in Phoenix.

Murphy Condemns $30 Pension Plan

MERCED, Cal., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Daniel C. Murphy, sheriff of San Francisco county, today stood as the only major gubernatorial candidate to openly denounce the California or "30 every Thursday" pension plan. He is seeking the Democratic nomination.

"The pension plan," Murphy told his audience of 2000 persons at a non-partisan political rally here last night, "is a snare and a delusion."

"I know it has been endorsed wholeheartedly by John D. Rockefeller and endorsed half-heartedly by Culbert Olson. But I say it is a crime to hold out this false hope to the old people of California."

Murphy termed the pension plan "unsound, impractical and unworkable."

Mooney Finishes 22 Prison Years

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—(UP)—The American Committee of Liberals for the Freedom of Mooney and Billings today announced Frederic March, film actor, sent Thomas Mooney the following message "of encouragement on the occasion of Mooney's 22nd year in prison":

"Dear Tom: May this be the last annual protest meeting ever to be held on the Mooney case. Surely within the next six months either the supreme court of the United States or the governor of California will have granted you a full and complete pardon which has been your unquestionable right for nearly a quarter of a century."

CARETAKER OF MASONIC HALL CRITICALLY HURT IN CRASH

Four persons were injured, two critically, at about the same time yesterday, according to police and hospital reports to two traffic accidents.

W. P. Woodmas, 60, caretaker of the Masonic Temple, here, suffered fractured skull, pelvis injury and two fractured legs at 4:30 p. m. in the intersection of 17th street and Bolso Chico road, two miles west of Westminister, when cars driven by Felix Hefflin, 25, Norwalk, and George C. Stout, 37, 3051-12 Spurgeon, Santa Ana, collided.

About 4 p. m., Mary Louise Ortis, 4, Los Alamitos road and Catalina avenue, Los Alamitos, a pedestrian, suffered head and internal injuries when struck down on Los Alamitos road by a car operated by Marguerite Albert Col, 18, 132 Ellis place, Fullerton. The child was taken to Long Beach

Community hospital where she was reported to be slightly improved today but still in critical condition. Miss Colli said she was driving about 35 or 40 miles per hour, that there was no chance to avoid striking the child.

In the Hefflin-Stout accident, Hefflin suffered fractured shoulder and cut forehead. He was treated at St. Joseph hospital before being transferred today to Artesia hospital, Norwalk. Woodmas was taken to county hospital for treatment. Stout was cut and bruised.

Public Enemy Is Given 45 Years

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Charles Bird, one-time "public enemy No. 2" today was sentenced to serve 45 years in prison for seven Baltimore robberies.

Judge Samuel K. Dennis pronounced sentence of the Ohio bad man immediately after the case of his 20-year-old wife was given to a jury. Bird will begin serving the sentence in the Maryland penitentiary here immediately.

Under maximum provisions Bird could have been sentenced to 140 years on the charges to which he entered surprise pleas of guilty as he came up for trial today.

O'Connor To Talk On Radio Tonight

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Rep. John J. O'Connor, Democratic chairman of the house rules committee whom President Roosevelt has placed on his "purge" list, will appear on the nation tonight in a speech broadcast over the Columbia broadcasting system at 8:45 EDT.

He said he would give his reasons for having opposed the President's reorganization bill and other New Deal measures, and elaborate on his previous charges that the New Deal was installing a dictatorship.

Extortionist Asks For 5 Cents

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—(UP)—When Henry Clay, manager of a henry, opened his store today he found himself "on the spot," faced with an extortionist's demand for money with dire consequences threatened.

A note, which had been slipped under the door, read:

"I want 5 cents or I'll get my BB gun."

"Any time you want to give me 5 cents, put it in the mail box in an envelope."

The extortionist had forgotten to sign the letter.

4 MEN HELD AS DRUNK DRIVERS

Four men were booked at county jail last night on charges of intoxication and drunk driving. Santa Ana police were responsible for the arrest of two, William E. Armstrong, 48, 916 East Pine, arrested at First and Birch streets by Officers W. E. R. Sherman and Conner's Roehm at 12:45 a. m. and Jerry E. Riley, 26, 225 First street, Huntington Beach, arrested at Eighth and Broadway by Officers F. L. Grouard and Roy Hartley at 3:15 a. m.

Accused As Speeder
Herbert Shiers, 41, Corona, was arrested at 10 p. m. by Deputy Sheriff Sara Stanley and William Trapp as he assertedly speeded between 60 and 70 miles per hour, driving from one side of Orangewood avenue to the other. Albert Eastman, 40, Route 2, Santa Ana, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Fred Swayze and Ives Brown at 10 p. m. as he drove on 101 highway near Red Hill road in Tustin township.

Sam W. Collins, 512 East Walnut, was stopped at First and Broadway at 12:45 a. m. when Officers Grouard and Hartley asserted they saw him driving erratically.

OPERATIC WORK SLATED FOR L. B.

Federal Music Project, dedicating itself to the promotion of good music in the major cities and environs of the Southland where large scale musical presentations are seldom available, brings to Long Beach Municipal auditorium under the sponsorship of the Arthur L. Peterson post No. 27 of the American Legion four consecutive Tuesday evenings of operatic presentation, August 30 to September 29.

"Pinafore," "Lohengrin," "The Mikado" and "Aida" are slated for presentation, complete in every detail, with a galaxy of talented and experienced performers boasting recent Los Angeles triumphs.

"Pinafore" is Opener
The series will open with "Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan madcap variations on the theme of "a lass who loved a sailor."

Moving from the ridiculous to the sublime in opera, Wagner's "Lohengrin," is slated for Tuesday, Sept. 6. Another Gilbert and Sullivan treat, "The Mikado," will be performed Tuesday, Sept. 13, again conducted by Dr. Alois Reiser.

The poignant and appealing "Aida" by Giuseppe Verdi concludes the Summer Festival for Long Beach, on Tuesday, Sept. 20.

In early times cakes of salt were used for money in Tibet and Abyssinia.

He was examined by a doctor, found "slightly intoxicated" and released after his car was placed in a garage for the night.

He was ticketed for driving without operator's license and with defective tail light. The doctor reported he was "unfit to drive a car."

SEAL BEACH OBTAINS RIGHT TO TAX L. A. CITY MACHINERY

Machinery in the Seal Beach generating plant of the city of Los Angeles is improvement on real property, may be assessed as such, and is not personal property.

So declared the state board of equalization for the second time yesterday according to a board decision received by City Attorney Burr Brown of Seal Beach, which upholds the right of his city to tax the machinery.

Bolted To Base
Litigation before the equalization board revolved around the contention of the city of Los Angeles that the machinery installed in the generating plant was movable and hence exempt from taxation. The city of Seal Beach held that the machinery was firmly bolted to the ground-work and base of the plant and was an improvement on real property.

The city of Los Angeles contended that the assessment of $4,106.775 was too high by $2,800,845 and, figured on a basis of $1.15 per $100, was excessive in the amount of $32,209. The beach city claimed a tax of $47,227.

Reduction of $80
The state board in its decision, however, did set aside from the total assessment roll $6960 placed on six transmission towers and power lines which would amount to a tax reduction of $80.

The next step for the city of Los Angeles, according to Brown, "probably will be a payment of the tax under protest and a suit to recover the tax in a local superior court." A similar suit is now in process in superior court for taxes collected last year.

A similar decision on the county's assessment against the plant was received yesterday by County Assessor James Sleeper.

Crowds Attend 'Ragtime Band' All-Star Bill

For a stirring colorful "devil dance" number in Irving Berlin's famous "Alexander's Ragtime Band," now showing to packed houses at the West Coast theater, 12 beautiful chorines were forced to wear filmdom's most unique dancing costumes—made of asbestos.

A trough, filled with a ton of dry ice, gives forth enormous amounts of steam-like substance. So to protect the dancing girls from skin burns from the dry ice fumes, costumes of asbestos were necessary.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band" is a stirring romantic story, laid in America's most tumultuous decades, to the accompaniment of 28 popular songs by Irving Berlin. The cast is headed by Tryone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley and Jean Hersholt.

Seen on the same program is the unique feature which records the dramatic story of the manufacture of steel, "Steel-Man's Servant." It is produced entirely in technicolor, shows in thrilling manner the way steel is produced from time iron ore leaves the mines until it is shaped into the many forms necessary to maintain present civilization.

Manager George King announced the West Coast features will be shown continuously from 2 p. m.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

FIRST BITE COSTS DOG'S OWNER $22

It has nothing to do with economic stress, but dogs are no longer allowed the one bite formerly granted them under common law. So Clyde Lawrence must pay $22 for the bite his dog gave J. Malcolm Green, Santa Ana newspaperman, according to a small claims court ruling today by Justice K. E. Morrison, of Santa Ana.

A statute enacted by the California legislature now provides that a dog's liability for his bites starts right with the first one, instead of the second. The old common law said that every dog was entitled to one bite.

Green claimed he was bitten by Lawrence's dog when he went to the Lawrence place at 824 West Third street last May. He asked a total of $50 damages, including $11.50 for his pants, $7.50 for his doctor bill, and $31 for injured feelings. The court cut his claim to $22.

Hackler Funeral Is Held Today

Funeral services were held this morning at the Wiltshire funeral home, Santa Monica, for Mrs. Mildred P. Hackler, 78, a resident of Santa Ana for 14 years previous to residence in Santa Monica for the past four years. Mrs. Hackler was born in Blue Springs, Mo., and came to California from Kansas. She passed away Monday.

Survivors are six daughters, Mrs. James C. Wylie of this city; Mrs. Edna Baker and Miss Gertrude Hackler of Santa Monica; Mrs. Jack Costello, Hollywood; Mrs. Ethel McDowell, Kansas City, Mo.; and Mrs. Myrtle Walton, Springfield, Mo., and one son, John R. Hackler, Topeka, Kan.

Police News

After several persons assertedly were threatened with a knife he held, Elisha Morales, 29, Route 1, Placentia, was jailed here early today on charges of intoxication and disturbing the peace. Jess Goda, 19, Anaheim, was charged with committing the same offenses in Placentia when arrested early today by Placentia police. Morales, according to the arresting officers, Deputy Sheriff Sara Stanley and William Trapp, committed the alleged offenses at the home of Joe Morales on Orangewood avenue west of Manchester boulevard.

G. A. Delap, 117 Adams, alleging a truck bearing license PC-M-4287 collided with a car driven by Mrs. Delap recently, asked police yesterday for the name of the registered owner of the truck. Checking with Sacramento state officials, police reported the truck registered to Otto McBride, Route 1, Huntington Beach.

Two local boys who tarried too long inside of the fence-enclosed high school grounds last night sent Officers W. E. B. Sherwood and Cornish Roehm on an investigation. Mrs. W. T. Kenney, 325 South Garnsey, who discovered the boys' predicament, called police. The officers aided the boys.

C. C. Moreno, 52, Los Angeles, was booked at county jail yesterday by Chief Criminals Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean on a charge of forgery.

Accused of committing vagrancy by remaining intoxicated over long periods of time, Walter Whisnand, 39, Route 1, La Habra, was jailed here yesterday afternoon by Constable William Tremaine of Brea.

Following an investigation of several weeks, Melvin Puckett, 31, Long Beach, was jailed here last evening by Deputy Sheriff G. F. McKelvey on a charge of petty theft. Puckett, according to allegations, stole a boat trailer. Judge Chris P. Pann, now sitting in Santa Ana justice court, set bail at $25.

COLORADOANS TO DINE
Former residents of Greeley, Colorado, will hold their annual picnic reunion at Bixby park, Long Beach, on Sunday. It was announced today by Harry A. Wilson, secretary of the Greeley society. A program has been arranged for the affair.

The largest meteor on record was that of Aug. 18, 1783, which traversed Europe from Shetland to Italy at 30 miles a second.

PUBLIC INVITED TO DISCUSSION

Whether Santa Ana junior college district will have a new junior college plant in the immediate future will be reflected at a conference that will attract several hundred interested citizens to the Santa Ana city hall council chambers at 7:30 p. m. today.

This was the opinion of Frank A. Henderson, superintendent of schools, in his announcement of the session to which have been invited representatives from 44 leading civic organizations in the city.

Efforts in Past
For the past several months there has been a concerted effort on the part of school districts in Southern Orange county to form a union junior college district with a union junior college as the goal, he pointed out.

Recently the trustees of the school districts decided they could not meet the requirements of the government for a Public Works Administration grant to assist in financing the construction and requested the Santa Ana board of education to continue the work already accomplished in the existing district. Deadline set by the government for the formation of a union district is Oct. 1, and it was felt that a union district could not be formed by that time.

Asks For Opinions
The Santa Ana board of education is the only legal entity empowered to request the federal government for a grant of 45 per cent of the construction cost, and application to the government already has been made.

The board has called tonight's meeting "in the hope that there will be full and free discussion advising the board whether to proceed with the plans now formulated or not," Henderson said.

MANY CITY TRAFFIC OFFENDERS CHOOSE TO WORK OUT FINES

Fifty per cent of the persons appearing before City Judge J. G. Mitchell yesterday to plead guilty to charges they committed traffic offenses were "work-minded," records show.

Robert C. Mize Jr., Santa Ana, charged with speeding and boulevard jumping, agreed to pay $10 for speeding; Ted Wiley, Long Beach, reckless driving August 11 agreed to work out a $25 fine assessed by the judge. Robert Wilbur, Santa Ana, fined $15 for speeding, driving without license and $2 for driving with four persons in the front seat.

Those who work out fines on city property, usually at the parks, are allowed approximately $3.60 per day on their fines.

Neal Gammell, Santa Ana, agreed to work out a $10 fine for speeding and Beryl Pennywell, Santa Ana, a $5 fine for boulevard jumping.

PENSION PLAN RAPPED IN TALK BEFORE TOASTMASTERS' CLUB

California's $30 a week pension plan, which may be on the November ballot, came in for considerable question of its feasibility and workability at a meeting of Santa Ana Toastmaster club members at Daniger's last night.

San Long, president of the club, selected the pension plan for his subject and described it "as dangerous and with no guarantee of payment."

"If the plan were adopted and in a few months it failed, thousands of old folks would be thrown out of work, who previously had been working and had given up their jobs to accept the $30 pension," Long commented.

"Over $200,000,000 worth of state warrants would be issued under the plan and would bring about a financial crisis in the state, if the plan failed," he continued.

The question was also raised by Long as to whether or not the plan may have been offered to the public by enemies of other more practical pension plans in an effort to discredit all types of pension movements.

Other Subjects
Other members of the club spoke on diversified subjects. Melvin Curtis spoke on "What Your Automobile Can Do." George C. Perkins discussed "The Social Position of Women as a by-product of Christianity." He compared the condition in this country with those in Europe and Asia.

Walter Ferris was awarded first place for the evening speaking on "An Eternal Question and Its Answer." Horace Ensign spoke on "Vacation Observations."

A round table discussion followed and was devoted to discussing "How Can An Intellectual Person Form An Opinion on the Numerous Proposals on the August Ballot?" And Is It Possible to Get Un-biased Information on the Proposals?

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, weak and the world looks punk.
A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

"Taxes!" What To Do About Them, Is Cry of Realtors

"Taxes! Taxes! Taxes! Shall we realtors accept the increase or shall we protect the commodity we sell?" This was the announcement and question mailed to members of the Santa Ana Realty Board today by President Ray Goodell in calling for a discussion of taxes at the regular meeting of the board tomorrow noon at the Rossmore cafe.

Man Nabbed Here Wanted In Idaho

On a teletype request from Sheriff P. D. Pace of Burley, Idaho, Clell Leo Lancaster, alias Ray Lancaster, 23, Santa Ana resident, was arrested at Fourth and Bush streets yesterday afternoon and booked at county jail on a charge of first degree burglary.

According to Officers Harry Fink and Charles W. Wolford who made the arrest, Lancaster first claimed he had not been in Idaho for several years, then declared he left Burley last Sunday morning to come here. Yesterday, he refused to waive extradition and Sheriff Pace planned to extradite him.

FALL FASHION REVUE PLANNED

What the well dressed woman will wear during the coming fall and winter season will be shown in a three-day Fall Fashion revue sponsored by the retail division of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce September 15, 16 and 17.

Local merchants are planning elaborate demonstrations of the latest styles and fashions, including special window displays and floor displays of the newest fabrics and modeling in all types of merchandise. Several stores are planning style shows with living models.

The committee for the fall opening of retail merchants includes, Carl Stein, chairman, Walter Swanberger, George Paes, and E. G. Alcott.

STARS PLAY AT COLTON: OILERS TRIM ANAHEIM

Right back where they started with each holding a victory but still three to go, Santa Ana and San Bernardino renew their semi-final Shaughnessy series tonight for the National Night league championship at Colton (San Bernardino's home park).

Stan Jacobsmeier will pitch for the Stars and Bob (Lefty) Fowler will be back on the knoll for the Oilers. "Jake" shaded Fowler, 4-3, in the 14-inning struggle that opened the series at Wrigley field last Sunday.

Jacobsmeier and Second Baseman Joe Koral leave for Berkeley immediately after the game to register tomorrow at the University of California for the fall term. The pitcher returns Sunday but Koral is to remain in the north. Tom Lacey probably will fill in at second base after tonight.

If Santa Ana can win tonight the Stars would seem to have a decided edge for the series clubs return here Monday night.

Huntington Beach's mighty Oilers last night took a 2-0 lead over Anaheim in the other half of the National league's play-off. They snatched a two-run lead on a bunting attack in the third inning, Anaheim watching it in the fourth when Fred Gunther boomed a home run over the right field fence (on the bounce) with Chuck Comstock on base. But Huntington Beach came right back in the fifth, scoring three times on hits by Osborn and Murray, a sacrifice by Kelley, a hopper to short by Reboin which Cornelius dropped at first base, Schuchardt's infield out and Manager Rodgers' infield single.

Second games of the Orange County Night Ball league's play-off series are scheduled for tonight at San Juan Capistrano and at Placentia. Tustin plays in the Mission City, and Yorba Linda invades Placentia.

These are "key" games for Tustin and Yorba Linda. They lost Monday's openers and if they fail again tonight will be forced to win three in succession to get into the final championship round. The County clubs play a best three-out-of-five games.

Pitchers probably will be Nieblas and Martinez at Capistrano and Bushman and Smiley at Placentia.

Ring Like Butcher's Apron After Armstrong Victory

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—Blood normally sells for $25 a pint. But that's the hospital price.

In Madison Square Garden last night 18,000 persons paid $102,000 to watch two blood donors, Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers, shed a quart or so in a dog-fight for the lightweight championship.

Many a bell has clanged, many a pound of resin been scuffed into the floor, many a count been tolled since two little men painted such a pugilistic canvas. They went at it with broad brushes and bold strokes, with savagery and courage for their basic colors.

At the finish, which saw Armstrong's hand lifted in victory—and it had to be lifted, he was so tired—there was scarcely a shirt in the working press that wasn't stippled with blood and the floor of the ring resembled a gigantic butcher's apron.

For 15 rounds—45 full minutes—the Negro and the Italian fought as though not only the 135-pound title, but their lives were at stake. From 10:15 to 11 o'clock they had at one another, head to head, chest to chest, toe to toe. First in this corner, then in the middle of the ring, sometimes with the ropes cushioning their backs, but always at it, eternally laying down barages of leather that raked one another's bodies from belly to eyebrows.

Only twice during the entire fight did the referee have to part between them and shove them out of a clinch. And on each of these occasions he risked injury because the closed Henry and Lou got together, the hotter they poured their nut-brown fists.

Men don't fight this way without paying the price.

Ambers was on the borderline of hysteria when I saw him in his dressing room a few minutes after it was all over. Naked, with cruel welts all over his body and a lump the size of a darning egg over his left eye, he sat in a straight-backed chair and alternately sang and laughed and babbled.

"I want a girl, just like the girl that married dear old dad," he chanted in one breath and then he would break in with:

"Whoop-a doo-py. He can't punch. He ain't the best puncher. Hiya pal. I want a gal . . . yeah, I coulda gotten up . . . just like the gal . . . hiya everybody . . ."

And as he sang and babbled his tired body still swayed as though he were rolling punches, his head bobbed as though he were ducking a right, and his feet did little miniature double shuffles.

Armstrong just sat. His eyes were bruised and his lips stood out in a raw pout. He licked them tenderly as he answered questions with the weariness of a suspect after 12 hours of the third degree. He never changed expression when cold water was sloshed on his face or flashlight bulbs exploded in his face.

He had given everything for the full distance he did not take a backward step. From bell to bell he rolled over forward behind a brown screen of gloves. He hit Ambers with everything. His fists, his wrists, his palms, his elbows, and even his head. His roughness cost him three rounds, but he never apologized.

He was 134 1-4 pounds of fighting man, doing a job of fighting, and Ambers, the referee, and the crowd could take it or leave it. He didn't care which. There were times when the little black man from California was so primitive that the beat of the tom-tom would have been more appropriate than a bell for marking the close of the rounds.

Against Armstrong, Ambers threw all his skill and all his courage, especially the latter. Dropped to his knees twice by explosions on his chin and spun clear across the ring by blast, he shook the mist from his brain and came up fighting. He was still up, and still fighting, when the rounds ran out.

He lost his championship, but he lost it the way a true champion should—fist braced, right hand cocked.

Del Mar's Stewards Tell Of Race Probe

DEL MAR (UP)—In a sudden move, the board of stewards of the Del Mar Turf club made public the details of their closed-door investigation Saturday into the $25,000 match race between Ligatroti and Seabiscuit which resulted in the suspension of both jockeys for the remainder of the meet.

The official statement follows: "During the running of the special race between Ligatroti and Seabiscuit, both boys went to the whip approaching the one-eighth pole, and at this point Ligatroti had a tendency to lug in.

"Coming to the one-sixteenth pole, Seabiscuit started to move on, but Jockey Richardson reached out and grabbed Seabiscuit's saddle cloth and held on to it until he got practically to the 70-yard pole, where Ligatroti had moved up considerably, and at this point he let go of the saddle cloth and tried to grab Jockey Woolf's wrist. Woolf fought to get his arm loose, and about 20 yards from the finish, reached out and grabbed Ligatroti's bridle rein and held on to it from there across the finish.

"The jockeys were called up to the stewards' stand immediately following the race and questioned. They were ordered to report to the stewards the following morning at 10 o'clock, as it is the custom of the stewards in such a case to give the jockeys a hearing before issuing a ruling.

"Jockey Richardson was accused by the stewards of grabbing Seabiscuit's saddle cloth, and Jockey Woolf accused of having grabbed Ligatroti's bridle rein, and the ruling which has already been made public by the board of stewards

ORANGE GIRLS WIN IN 7TH INNING, 3-2

A sizzling double off the bat of Phoebe Miller, scoring Ruth Lee with Orange's winning run in the last of the seventh inning, broke up a 3-2 softball game with the Perfection Beach girls at Orange last night.

Miss Miller's double terminated a dazzling mound duel between Lois Terry of the Lionettes and Virginia Gillen.

ALLIANCE MUTUAL SCOTTIE'S ON TOP

In two hotly contested softball games Scottie's Malt shop and Alliance Mutual Life's Juniors were returned winners in Playground league games played at the Municipal Bowl last night.

Alliance Life's youngsters defeated the Traffic squad nine, 11-10, after staging off a three-run Traffic Squad rally in the final inning. Scottie's Malters were forced to go nine innings before beating A's Lock and Key Shop, county champs, 4-3. A's grabbed a temporary lead in the first of the ninth when Pieper hit a home run. Scottie's came back in their half of the inning to tie the count. Then Pieper walked and scored on McKee's hit to clinch victory.

POUSSOS MAY BE ON MOUND FOR ELTISTES

Swinging into action for the second time this week, the Santa Ana City league's first and second half champions—Elks and Eltistes met again tonight at the Municipal Bowl in their play-off series which opened Monday with the Elks winning, 6-2.

Tonight's game will start at 7:45. A ten-cent admission charge again will be in force.

While Monday's contest proved to be somewhat of a dud as far as competition was concerned, the game should bring out the true strength of the Eltiste Truckmen, who will be out to even the series and stay in the running. But the Elks are favored to repeat, especially if Lyle Morse makes his second start on the mound. While Bruce Harnois was listed as a possible starter, it was believed that Manager Darwin Scott would string along with Morse, hoping to clinch the series as quickly as possible.

Either Armand (Lefty) Hanson or Parisis Roussos will get the call for Eltistes. Hanson got himself in considerable difficulty in the first three innings of the opening encounter but after that pitched brilliantly with the aid of some airtight support. The Elks tallied all their runs in the first and third innings.

The lineup: Elks—Dave Webb, c; Fred Cartwright, 1b; Bruce Harnois, cf; Art Heinisch, rf; Darwin Scott, 3b; LeRoy Levens, ss; Mickey Walker, 2b; Dave Styling, if; Lyle Morse, p, and James Webb, if. Eltistes—Ray O'Campo, rf; Gene O'Campo, 3b; Pete Partida, ss; Bob Holmes, lf; (Fred (Porky) Bell, cf; Fred Southworth, 1b; Herb Meyer, 2b; Walt Williams, c; Soren Sorenson, if; Armand Hanson, p.

The third game in the play-off will be played next Monday night. If other games are necessary they will follow Thursday, Aug. 25 and Monday, Aug. 29.

SHORT LEADS CITY BATTERS

Outfielder Ray Short of the Elks, who graduated to Santa Ana's National league club, near the end of the season, won the City league's swatting championship with an average of .492.

George Preble, an ex-National leaguer, finished second at .441, playing for the Eltiste nine. "Whitney" Mann, Russ Gundersen and Leonard Jefferson followed.

Lyle Morse of the Elks was the league's leading pitcher, followed closely by his teammate, Bruce Harnois. The figures:

DOTS AND DASHES AND ONE OR TWO FLASHES

Huntington Beach players are pulling for Santa Ana to eliminate San Bernardino in that half of the National league's Shaughnessy playoffs. They figure the Stars would outdraw the Ponies in the finals; the long jump to San Bernardino discourages most Huntington Beach fans. The current news reel at the Broadway theater shows Ed (Don co-captain) Stanley riding his board in the recent Catalina-Hermosa aquaplane race in which the footballer placed third. . . .

New scorecards are being issued at the Santa Ana Country club. They print in detail new golf rules that obtain at all Southern California courses. . . . Henry Martinez, eagle-eyed forward of last season's strong Orange prep basketball team, is enrolling at Santa Ana next month. . . . Two Anaheim Dons, Lynn Arnett and Cal Calaway, have put on 15 and 20 pounds, respectively, since last football season. . . . Another gragger, Ernie Danielson, 1934 half-back, contemplates returning to Jaysee. He's up 20 pounds to 180 now. . . .

"Doc" Smith came nearest to analyzing the 1938 National Night Ball league race. He picked 'em like this: Huntington Beach, San Bernardino, Santa Ana, Anaheim, Orange, Brea, Irvine, Whittier and that's not far from the way they finished. This pillar of wisdom had it Huntington Beach, San Bernardino, Whittier (why bring that up?) Anaheim, Santa Ana, Orange, Irvine and Brea. . . .

Bowler Bob Smith will be going in the business if he keeps acquiring balls. Last month he won a minnerale at the Huntington Beach all-star and he's in line for another ball this month at the Santa Ana academy. In both contests Smith rolled precisely the same score, 266. . . . Speaking of contests, Coach "Tex" Oliver picked seven winners at Del Mar last Saturday. He was acting as guest handicapper for the San Diego Tribune and his selections appeared on the front page. . . . Joe Rodgers of the Huntington Beach Oilers has a letter from Louie Neva Novikoff and a clipping from a Chicago paper of interest to those who have been following the "hard ball" career of the former softball slugger. The newspaper clipping quotes a Three league umpire (Lynn Kelly) as the effect that Novikoff is "the greatest hitter I've ever seen; he's better than Joe Medwick; he can hit anything thrown to him." In his letter to Rodgers, Larupin' Lou admits he's been having difficulty fielding ground balls but claims he's improving this deficiency and had made only two errors in the past month. Novikoff's batting average is around .360 at Moline and he's slammed 13 homers and 22 triples. He'll be home Sept. 7 and may rejoin the Huntington Beach softball team (if they need any help). . . .

Tex Oliver calls his Oregon coaching staff the "beef trust cabinet." Bill Cole weighs 240, Mike Mikulak 215 and Frosh Coach John Warren comes in at 225. Oil-bake, contemplates returning to Jaysee. He's up 20 pounds to 180 now. . . .

The annual Lake Tahoe vacation of Howard (Muggs) Mitchell was saddened last week by the sudden death of Jimmy, six-year-old son of the Chaffey high school football and basketball coach. Because the little boy was especially fond of the lake his ashes were scattered over the waters.

'Team Match' On Mat Card Tonight

Two of the roughest men in the wrestling business are scheduled to meet two of the most scientific tonight when Yukon Jake and Tony Morelli clash with Cecil Magill and Alvin Britt in a "team" wrestling match booked for the main event tonight at Orange County Athletic club.

This match, according to promoter "Bud" Levin, will prove whether "might is more than right" of the supremacy of roughness over skill. Jake and Morelli will be the heavy villains in the match with Magill and Britt providing the heart interest. Additional interest is added because Morelli defeated Magill on a more or less questionable decision last week. The match will go three falls to a finish.

In the semi-windup Monte LaDue, French Apache, meets Pat O'Brien, the Hollywood Irishman. LaDue, bold and with a handle bar mustache, is returning to the mat wars after a vacation spent in Paris where he is said to have perfected a new hold that combines La Savete, the French meth-nod of fighting with the feet, with the American version of manslaughter.

In the curtain raiser Bobby Wagner takes on Mr. X, in a one-fall finish match.

LAGUNA BEACH COUNCIL REDUCES TAX RATE

ASK DISCHARGE OF COMMISSION

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 18.—The tax rate for the coming fiscal year 1938-39 in the city of Laguna Beach, will be three cents below last year's figure of $1.19. It was announced at last night's meeting of city council. The 115th session of the budget, details of which will be announced in the near future.

Discuss Dog Situation
Much time was devoted to various aspects of the dog pound situation. A large number of persons presented different complaints against existing conditions, including nocturnal noises. One letter of protest demanded information as to "why country dogs are killed in the city" (of Laguna Beach).

Discharge of the present recreation commission and appointment of another body, the personnel to be chosen from various civic organizations, was demanded in a letter from the Civic Betterment committee, endorsed by the American Legion. Signed by Commander Harold Reed of American Legion post 222 and Lloyd Loveland, the communication will be considered by the council as committee of the whole, with report to be rendered next week.

Bus Permit Granted
Permission was sought by the Santa Fe bus line to establish an office and loading point on Ocean avenue, in the same block now used by the Greyhound lines. The Santa Fe has been operating under temporary permit, which expired three days ago, and the spokesman, William J. Wade, sought consent of the council for use of the new quarters. This will be taken up at next week's council meeting, following a preliminary investigation by Police Commissioner Charles H. Jester.

Conduct Funeral
Of Mesa Resident

COSTA MESA, Aug. 18.—Funeral services for George Adolph Miller, 79, of 419 Old Country road were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Dixon Funeral chapel, with the Rev. William R. Hessel, pastor of Christ Church By the Sea, in charge. Interment was in Westminster Memorial park.

The deceased, who was 79 years of age, was a retired carpenter and cabinet maker. He was a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, and had lived in the harbor area for the past 15 years.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Gertrude Miller, at home, and a nephew, Carson Nelson, of San Diego.

SIDE GLANCES by George Clark

"I know we're late. I had a terrific battle with Burton to get him to come at all."

Members of Mesa
Club Entertained

COSTA MESA, Aug. 18.—M.O.A. club members were guests Tuesday of Mrs. Bertram Smith when she entertained the group at her home on Harbor boulevard. Following an afternoon spent at informal conversation and handwork, refreshments of strawberry gelatin dessert and cherry punch were served.

Present were Mrs. Espe Williams, Mrs. Andrew Lupton, Mrs. Bertram Smith, Mrs. Walter B. Marchbank, Mrs. Gordon Almond, Mrs. Frank Vele and Mrs. Ida Hartshorn.

LEAVE FOR EAST

COSTA MESA, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Ralph Vele and son, Lester Smith, of 2109 Fairview avenue, left by motor Tuesday for a visit in Minneapolis, Minn., with Mrs. Vele's mother, Mrs. Julia Potter, of Minneapolis, Minn. They expect to be back in Costa Mesa about September 12.

Mrs. Lillian Leily and daughters, of Inglewood, are house guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Ferns, 2172 Ocean avenue.

LAGUNA PLANS
DONKEY GAME

LAGUNA BEACH, Aug. 18.—A "donkey baseball" game, in which teams of burros will be mixed with two-legged players, will be staged August 25 at the high school diamond by the Laguna Beach Softball league. The donkeys, highly-trained participants in baseball, have created much amusement recently at Huntington Beach and Tustin, the "desert canaries" played to capacity audiences.

Certain departures from accepted baseball are embodied in the game. Thus, all players except the pitcher, catcher, and batter are mounted on donkeys. The pitcher keeps on feeding the batter until a clean hit is made, no balls or strikes being called. Upon a hit being made, the batter must get aboard a burro, and run bases, being called safe if one or more of the donkeys' feet are on the bag.

Proceeds from next week's game go to the nightball league for replenishment of supplies. Advance sale of tickets is reported brisk by a committee including Joe Newcomb, Otis Hines, W. R. Tattersfield, Hi Jaqua, Ellis Sampson and Phil Castle of Costa Mesa.

Mesa Society To Install Leaders

COSTA MESA, Aug. 18.—Mesa society members of the Costa Mesa Community church were Tuesday guests at the home of Mrs. H. B. McMurtry, 228 Twentieth street. Majority of the time was spent in outlining the program for next year, with the hostess appointed as program chairman by the president, Mrs. Louise Bechtold. Mrs. McMurtry will appoint her own assistants for the year's work.

Plans were also considered for installation of officers, in the church chapel September 20. The officers, all re-elected, are Mrs. Louise Bechtold, president; Mrs. E. L. Bennett, vice president; Mrs. James M. Gallagher, secretary and Mrs. Vernon Coyner, treasurer. Devotional services by Mrs. J. A. Meiser and the stewardship report, Mrs. Velma Compton. The latter was appointed Christian citizenship chairman for the new year.

HOLD EVERYTHING!

"I'll have you to understand, Miss Twip, that as vice president here I can play with any toy in the establishment."

LIST COURSES
IN FULLERTON

FULLERTON, Aug. 18.—The program of technical training for the industries to be housed in the new Technical building at the Fullerton Junior college is expected to appeal to a large number of men students. Two-year curriculums will be offered in aeronautics, machine shop, mill and cabinet, ornamental iron and welding, and Diesel engines.

Courses have been offered in all of these fields for some years. The program this fall will differ from that of previous years in that 15 to 20 hours of time each week is to be devoted to technical training in the subject which constitutes the core of the curriculum, and also in that a larger amount of related subject matter is included in the program.

The programs have been worked out to meet the requirements of the federal vocational acts. Each technical program includes, in addition to its field of concentration and related matters, courses in bookkeeping, English, letter writing, health education, and American institutions. These courses are to be developed to suit the special needs of technical students. All two-year technical programs lead to graduation with the Associate of Arts degree.

Five instructors have been granted federal certificates to teach technical courses. These are Elwin Ames, Charles Hart, W. P. Corlett, Harry des Granges and Westwood Case. R. A. Marsden, head of the department of mechanical arts, will supervise the technical courses.

Many other vocational programs are offered by the college.

NEWPORT COMMISSION SEEKS APPOINTMENT OF HARBOR BODY

NEWPORT BAY, Aug. 18.—Creation by the county board of supervisors of a new Orange county harbor commission was urged by vote of the Newport Beach Planning commission last night at a public hearing on the proposed half million dollar civic improvements project.

The request was drawn up in the form of a recommendation to the Newport Beach city council that it petition the supervisors to create a harbor commission as allowed by a state legislature act of May 25, 1937.

Seek Two Wharves
Such a commission, Dr. Howard W. Seager, secretary of the planning board, pointed out, is needed immediately to provide for, among other things, the erection of two public wharves, one at the site of the present Balboa pavilion and the other at the Corona del Mar bay front.

These projects, originally included among those proposed for the civic improvement bond election, have since been deemed to be in the jurisdiction, not of the city of Newport Beach, but of the county harbor district.

City Engineer R. L. Patterson, chief dissenter of the proposition, argued that the planning commission should not commit itself officially regarding the harbor commission, but should leave the recommendation entirely to the city council and the board of supervisors. The commission's recommendation, however, carried by a vote of four to two.

Two Residents Of
Cypress Married

CYPRESS, Aug. 18.—Two residents of Cypress were married at ceremonies this week. Thomas Raymond Mackay, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Mackay, of Cypress, was married to Miss Virginia Price, of Pomona. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Price. She graduated from Pomona Junior college.

Mr. Mackay is a graduate of Anaheim Union high school, Santa Ana Junior college and Utah university. At the present time he is associated with the Pomona Pump Manufacturing company. The Mackays plan to make their home in Pomona.

A second Cypress wedding was the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Sarah Harden, daughter of Charles H. Harden, of Cypress, to Robert Gavin Preston, of Pomona. This function took place Monday in the Buena Park Congregational church with the Rev. Stanley Powell officiating.

The bride is an Anaheim high school graduate and has been attending Fullerton Junior college. Mr. Preston is a Chino High school graduate. He is employed on the Pomona Bulletin Progress.

Miss Rosella Harden, the young sister of the bride, acted as her sister's bridesmaid while Pierce Preston, younger brother of the groom attended as best man.

Mesa Auxiliary
To Name Officers

COSTA MESA, Aug. 18.—Nomination and election of a secretary and treasurer will feature the business session of the American Legion auxiliary scheduled for Monday evening at the American Legion hall. By-laws of the auxiliary are to be changed to permit a division of the office. GARDEN AND HOME

Through the Garden Gate

With MARAH ADAMS

Interest in cactus gardening brought George R. Martin, 1146 South Birch street, to California from Florida. Not that living in Florida kept Martin from raising cactus. Quite the contrary. His cactus gardens in a climate and state totally unfitted to grow desert plants, were visited by hundreds of persons.

As soil and climate were not suited to cactus propagation, Martin had desert soil shipped to Florida from Arizona. He manufactured the correct climate by erecting a glasshouse not to keep the moisture in, as would be the case here, but to keep the moisture out!

With the right soil and the right sort of climate Martin grew at his home at Lakeland, Fla., 1500 cactus plants of 600 varieties. There are more colorings and forms to be found in the cacti group than in any other family, Martin says.

At the present time Martin is completing an unusual cactus garden at the south side of his home. This is the reason he came to California in order to grow the plants in which he is so keenly interested, under natural conditions.

The garden will be 65 feet long and four feet wide. It has been built in the form of a long raised area with high flat rock walls. This length is to be divided into small garden plots. Soil will be placed in the small gardens which will be varied to suit the growth requirements of various kinds of plants.

Beside the cactus garden now under way Martin has a fine collection of cereus and cactus plants in his back yard and a terraced cactus garden in a corner of the front yard.

Included in the curious growths in the Martin collection is a fishhook cactus, a native of California, the spines forming a perfect fish hook, and a cactus called appropriately enough, the "jumping devil" having a spine shaped like a harpoon, which the plant throws out; an Old Man cactus, the golden ball, the barrel cactus and many others.

One of the most curious plants is a native of Africa which has the exact appearance of several small rocks. It is called "Pleios." Martin's gardens in Florida were written up and photographed and great interest was taken in a project which required soil shipped nearly across the continent.

Cacti became what they are because of a great struggle for existence under adverse conditions, assuming forms which may seem grotesque but which are the result of environment. The beauty of the flowers in a wide range of color scarcely can be duplicated in any other plant family. Everyone is aware of the vibrant living quality found in the flower of the cereus and this same "aliveness" and a certain mysteriousness seems to characterize all cactus flowers.

Seattle each summer has a one man flower show. The exhibitor is a Dr. H. L. Smith of Bellevue, Wash. Dr. Smith supplies the flowers, dahlias of many varieties, and garden clubs of Seattle make the flower arrangements. The dahlia grower at one time worked with Burbank and he is developing an edible dahlia, which already has been cooked in a number of ways.

In the recent unique show, dahlias were combined with Walt Disney's Seven Dwarfs and the lovely Snow White, black velvet, pewter, candles and mirrors.

Beauties and the Beast

Tyrannosaurus Rex, king of five prehistoric beast statues recently erected in Dinosaur Park at Rapid City, S. D., bares wicked-looking teeth at the feminine quintet who had nerve enough to approach it. The monster, as reproduced by E. A. Sullivan, designer, is 15 feet high and 35 feet in length. In the background of the picture is the brontosaurus, largest of the models, which weighs 75 tons.

Stegosaurus With Sex Appeal

It's a safe wager that the ancient stegosaurus after which the above steels and concrete copy was modeled never had such a lovely load to tote around. This lucky prehistoric reptile comes right up to date with a cargo of modern bathing queens. Seven feet high, 11 feet long, he's one of five recently erected in Dinosaur Park at Rapid City, S. D., at a cost of $18,000, partly financed by WPA.

State Tests Many Seeds

SACRAMENTO, CAL., Aug. 18. (UP)—Literally millions of seeds, vegetable, grain and flower, flow through the state testing laboratory of the department of agriculture in a never-ending fight to protect California's farmers against noxious weeds and improve the quality of agricultural seed.

August is a busy month for W. L. Goss, head of the seed inspection laboratory, and his assistants. The peak season will continue all through December and then slack off to a low level in May and June. Anyone in the state is entitled to four free tests per year and a nominal charge is levied for additional seed inspections. The chief function of the laboratory is to determine the purity of the seed sample and to determine the germinating quality of the seed. The laboratory was first started in 1927 and an average of 6,000 samples are processed annually.

One of the most complete herbariums in the west has been built up for reference purposes in the Sacramento laboratory. There are approximately 4,000 samples for the reference of the four full-time analysts and 10 field inspectors. When a purity test is made, about 3,000 seeds are sorted and sifted until an average of 100 seeds are segregated. The sample is then divided into weed seeds, inert matter, the crop being tested, and other crops. These are accurately counted to determine whether the seed buyer is getting a good or bad product. Constant inspection of seeds and strict regulation have resulted in a market improvement of seeds being used on California farms.

For the seed germination test, 100 seeds of average size are placed in either a hot or cold chamber, depending on the test to be taken. The test is to determine what percentage of the seeds are pure and sprout normally.

Another function of the department is to identify seeds, since more than 200 kinds of flower, vegetable, forage, grass and plant seeds are sent in for identification.

Alfalfa heads the crops which are tested in the laboratory. Sudan grass is next and sour clover, a cover crop, is third. There are many cereals inspected, including wheat, barley and oats. White clover and ladino clover, a giant form of white clover, sugar beets, peas, and such vegetable as onions, carrots and spinach are other seeds tested in heavy volume. The bulk of the seed samples are sent by dealers who need accurate information for labeling and selling purposes. Individual farmers also send in seeds, although many are unaware of the service being offered by the state department.

may be good news to know that the plant is a biennial and may be eliminated by digging it out as fast as it appears above the surface of the ground. The roots were designed for but two years' use, and they must have blades above the ground in order to keep alive. Continued vigilance in keeping all sprouts dug out will eradicate the grass within two years time.

Two women both living in Orange and members of the Orange Women's club, and both intensely interested in gardening and flower shows, have husbands who are direct descendants of the John Alden who was made famous by the poet, Longfellow, in the "Courtship of Miles Standish."

They are Mrs. Fred Alden, chairman of the Orange County Fall Flower show to be held September 10 and 11, and Mrs. A. H. Hallock in charge of specifications. Mrs. Hallock's man of the family is a member of the eighth generation of the Alden family. He was descended from a line which started with a daughter of the lovely Priscilla and John Alden, whose name was Elizabeth and who married William Tabodie.

Mrs. Alden's life partner, is a member of the ninth generation starting from a son of the famous Pilgrim pair with the name carried on through each generation. The two club women never have figured out just to what cousinly degree their husbands are related.

Orange County Gardening

By Mrs. H. Cardoza Sloan, Corona Del Mar
Being sound advice and interesting comment on what to plant and how to care for Orange county gardens.

Did you ever live near a lake—perhaps a little lake? Then you will love these lines written by Ethel Romig Fuller and called "Dawn Interval."

"Dawn, be careful lest you break The black crystal of this lake— It is so still, so limpid thin, With a wedge of moon set in. Swallow, willow, stay your leaves! Lily, do not open, nor Heron, wade out from the shore. Beauty is so fugitive, Let this perfect moment live."

I wish I had risen earlier in those long-ago summers beside the lake of precious memory, that I might have filled my soul with the loveliness of this perfect dawn interval.

Now and then the first member of the family to go out-of-doors would call excitedly, "Come quick! The lake is black!" But usually by the time we got out into the sunny morning the crystal surface of the lake was shattered into sparkling ripples of sapphire.

Sometimes, as if to show she was not unduly partial to the early risers, Nature would give us a black lake at sunset time. Then we would row out toward the middle of the lake, over water awet, pull in the oars and give ourselves up to the mystic beauty of the long twilight hour.

The black crystal of the lake, the dusky green of the firs on the wooded shores, the sunset stain of rose in the western sky—amidst a breathless silence which seemed only the more still when the clear note of a bird's evening song had died away across the quiet water. So still—so still—"The Lord is in His holy temple. Let all the earth keep silent before Him."

Oh, beautiful, beautiful the memory of those evening hours in the glory of madian twilights.

This is mid-August. Perhaps the lake is black tonight, the fir trees green and scented on the shore, and the bird calls from the shadowy woods trembling, fading, dying away with the sunset, and the twilight melting into the dark of summer night.

And I three thousand miles away, more than a little homesick for those hours to which Time in its flight can never return.

This lovely bit of verse gives us other pictures besides the black crystal of the lake. "Swallow, wait beneath your eaves!" Were there swallows near your lake, too, nesting under the eaves of old gray barns, wheeling and dipping over the meadows and skimming the quiet lake waters at morn and evening?

"Willow, willow, stay your leaves!" Did willows overhang your lake, and drop their yellow leaves silently on the water, while you skimmed the surface for "skippers" with a rush-woven dipper?

"Nor, Heron, wade out from the shore!" You remember the lifted head, the watching eye, the ripples in spreading circles about each slowly advancing foot?

"Lily, do not open." On my lake the only lilies grew in Grandmother's cove beneath the shelter of the bayberry scented hill pasture. Finer lilies and more beautiful bloom today in many a pool and pond, but none so precious nor so dear as those modest little white lilies with their golden hearts and heavenly perfume.

Lakes, of the sort that have swallows and willows and lilies, are not to be found in Orange county, but here and there we have a garden pool, where one seeks to capture a little of the limpid charm of lake waters.

On our last week's garden page two types of pools were pictured. The formal, which usually has a straight, unplanted edge, and is at its best when scantily planted that it may have clear open water for lovely reflections.

And the informal pool, which is most used, possibly because it is more appropriate for small spaces and most of us have but small spaces. The placing, shaping and planting of an informal pool give scope for much individuality of development. Perhaps two cautions might be given—not to have a pool at all unless it can be harmoniously fitted into its surroundings, and to use restraint in planting, for it is the easiest thing in the world to get too many plants in at the start. Observe these—and then let personal taste and imagination do the rest.

If you want to have lilies in your pool, it should be in full sun. After you decide on the place, the size and shape of the pool, dig out soil to the depth of two feet and level off. Shave the walls as near perpendicular as possible. (This is important, as cats are very fond of fish, and if the wall slopes very much the fish come to the edge and are easily caught by the cat.) Tamp walls and floor of the pool and reinforce with heavy fence wire, covering walls and floor.

The concrete should be poured continuously, so there will be no joints, and as it is poured the reinforcing should be pulled up to the center of the layer of concrete, thus making pool stronger and less apt to crack.

The proper cement mixture is one shovel of cement to five of sand. Mix well and then add enough water to make a rather stiff mixture. As concrete is poured, it should be well tamped to take out porous places and thus insure a water tight pool. Allow cement to become thoroughly set, then apply a thin coat of one part cement and three parts screened sand, and when this is hardened apply a coat of paint made of pure cement. Be sure to keep cement moist as it hardens, by spraying with a fine spray at intervals, as the slower cement hardens the stronger it will be.

After pool is thoroughly set it may be filled with water, filling very slowly. Allow water to stand in pool for a week to soak out the alkali; drain off and sweep thoroughly when dry, and the pool is ready for planting and filling. These directions are given by one of our Southern California water garden specialists and if followed should give you a serviceable pool. Next week, something about what to plant in and around the pool.

MY DREAM GARDEN

My garden lies within these walls quite high, To keep out sorrow, strife, and alien corn, And prying eye.

My garden's made for friends who understand, For those who wander through it with me Hand in hand.

My flowering peaches proudly stand and think, I am the very first to bloom in spring, Two shades of pink.

My willows stoop in reverence to rest, To Him whose footsteps mark the path Where violets nest.

My hollyhocks, my larkspur, cornflowers blue, Rosemary for remembrance. Some Sage, and thyme, and rue.

My garden fades, the lights are dim . . . The years are long that made this garden grow. Let's turn it back to Him. —Mina Shafer in "Western Poetry"

List Dates Of Long Beach Begonia Show

The American Begonia society will hold its "Third Annual Free Show" at the Signal Hill Agricultural Center, 1300 East 23rd street, Long Beach, California on August 20 and 21, it is announced by J. N. Nutter, show manager. Doors will be open from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. both days. An exhibit of special interest will be a collection of begonia blossoms which will be sent by airplane from Capitola Saturday morning.

Fall Time To Divide These

Clumps of perennials, such as delphinium, gaillardia, coreopsis, geum, pyrethrum, coral bells, phlox and peonies, may be very safely lifted, divided and replanted during the fall months.

With the exception of the peony, which forms very fleshy large roots with a definite crown and eyes, most of the clumps divide into natural divisions in the hand under slight pressure. Each division, of course, must have a well-developed crown.

When re-setting, it is quite important that the crowns be set at the same level that they originally were in the bed. In the case of pyrethrum and gerberas, it is very important that the crown be well above the soil level to insure perfect drainage and to obviate loss by rotting.

If divided early enough in fall and set with the eyes slightly below the surface of the bed, perennials will bloom the succeeding year, otherwise, they will not bloom until the second year.

If in lifting perennial clumps, there are evidences of soil mite, bug, usually indicated by stringy, white cottony masses, all of the soil should be washed from the roots and the entire plant doused in a dilute phytomicon oil spray to prevent spread of insects.

When preparing the flower beds to receive the clump divisions, the soil preference of the species. If the soil preference is toward alkalinity, some agricultural shell flower lime and some bonemeal as plant food should be thoroughly incorporated with the soil.

While few California gardeners have been successful in raising peonies, some persons in Orange county are said to be growing them with more or less satisfactory results.

Planting Calendar

For Christmas sweetpeas plant winter blooming varieties now. Also plant phlox drummondii. Flower seeds to sow: Winter-blooming sweet peas, African daisy, anemone, calendula, cornflower, nasturtium, phlox, ranunculus. Start in seed box, cineraria, pansy, primrose, rue, snapdragon, stock, violas and all perennials like carnation, cerise, delphinium, hollyhock, pentstemon, statice, wallflowers.

Bulbs to set: Anemone, calla, colchicum (the autumn crocus), Dutch and Spanish iris, freesia, hybrid amaryllis, nerine, ranunculus and sterna. Vegetables: All kinds; especially cabbage, cauliflower, kale, onion, parsnip, salsify, spinach, and turnip.

Flowers have music to their own designs; The minut is easy for the stately hollyhocks, And hymns are natural for lilies fair, The march was made precisely for the phlox. Pale sonatas for pale moonflowers, Rose know a strange Arabian tune. Learned in distant gardens, but that rogue The ragged-robin can play a jig at noon. —Mary-Virginia in Chicago Tribune.

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

NEA SERVICE, INC.

The Great Pierre

Yesterday, just as Kinks proposed to Sally, Mrs. Clipstock announced there is a luncheon in the front yard, taking rabbits out of his hat.

CHAPTER X

SALLY and Kinks dashed through the house to the porch. It was apparent at once that Mrs. Clipstock was right. Proceedings of a singular nature were taking place on the front lawn.

On the grass at the edge of the driveway stood a tall, black-haired gentleman. He had a pair of magnificent mustachios which curled luxuriously at either side of his mouth. His chin was long, tapering and shrouded by a little goatee. Despite the warmth of spring, he was dressed in somber black with a flowing black cape draped over his shoulders. On his head was a silk top hat.

The fact that the hat might recently have been standing in for a rabbit hutch seemed proved, circumstantially at least. A small, white rabbit with suspicious eyes sat at the gentleman's feet, contentedly nibbling a dandelion. And even as Sally and Kinks paused, open-mouthed, on the porch, the top-hatted citizen was in the act of extracting a string of frankfurters from the ear of Mr. Tony Spaldini, to an accompaniment of delighted guffaws furnished by Mr. Bull Griffin.

Lurking in the driveway was a Ford with a trailer attached. And on the side of the trailer in bold, white letters ran the legend:

LE GRAND PIERRE
Maitre de la Magie

Perceiving Sally and Kinks the silk-hatted gentleman hastily extracted all the frankfurters that Mr. Spaldini's ear seemed to contain. Then he swept the top hat before him in a curving arc and bowed low.

"Bonjour, mademoiselle et monsieur," he said. "Etes-vous les maitres d'hotel?"

Sally spoke. Sally was acutely conscious that a possible patron confronted them.

"We can accommodate you," said Sally, "if you care to stay."

As she spoke it occurred to her that the Pennington-Parker Restorium was fast taking aboard a most heterogeneous cargo. An irascible elderly lady. A temper with electricity. Two New York gangsters. And now a magician. But what of it, she thought. Money was money, no matter who paid it.

"I wish ze room of greatest privacy," said Pierre, settling all doubt as to his intentions. "I rest now. I relax. I am disgust."

"With—with magic?" Kinks

asked. He hoped not. He thought the idea of having a magician in the house most attractive. It would furnish much diversion for the guests.

The Frenchman turned a mournful eye on him.

"Mais non," he said. "Not with ze magic. I am ze Great Pierre, ze greatest magician of ze world."

"Damm if you ain't," put in Bull Griffin, who had been very much impressed.

"Et is with ze women zat I have ze disgust," continued the Great Pierre sadly. He glanced at Sally. "Who does not pairceive zat, mademoiselle ees charming, he ees ze blind man. But zair are ze women zat are—how you say eet—ze traitors."

"Ain't it da truth?" said Bull Griffin. "When you want to know who's double-crossed you, all you gotta do is churchie la foam."

"Monsieur speaks ze French like a native," said the Great Pierre, with a sidelong wink at Kinks.

"I 'cnolly frawnce to beat the devil," said Bull proudly. "I was wit' da Seventy-Seventh Division."

"HERE ees what 'appen," said the Great Pierre, who seemed anxious to come entirely clean. "I have zis girl. She ees ze—do you say—asasant? She 'elp me with my trecks. But what does she do? Two days ago in Bridgeport she leave me." He snapped his fingers. "Like zat, pouf!"

"Took a runout powder, hey?" said Bull Griffin intently.

"Out," said the Great Pierre. "She take ze powder. But I, Pierre, know where she go. She go to Yussif, the Trecky Turk."

Yussif, he give what he call magic show in Hartford. Of a sudden the Great Pierre burst into a derisive laugh. "She think she show Yussif my trecks. But she one beeg fool. Yussif? Zat cochoon. Mon Dieu, Yussif ees not feet to take ze egg from ze collar. Like so!"

He extended what appeared to be an empty hand and plucked an egg from the back of Mr. Bull Griffin's rhino neck.

"Boy," exclaimed Mr. Griffin enthusiastically, "dat wuz neat. Show me dat one, will you, pal?"

"I have just the room you want," said Sally, who was anxious to get down to brass tacks. "It's a big one on the ground floor. You'll be all by yourself there."

The Great Pierre waved his hand.

"I take eet," he said Napoleonically. "Ze sight unseen. But all my—my equipment ees in zere." He pointed to the trailer. "Eet must come to ze room with me. Of that I inset."

"Mr. Parker will carry it in," said Sally.

MR. PARKER did, with the help of Mr. Tony Spaldini, graciously loaned by Bull Griffin. It took them the best part of half an hour to get the Great Pierre's impedimenta out of the trailer and into the house. There were trunks, suitcases, boxes and crates of all descriptions. There were numberless queer-looking bundles, very green and very profane parrot was in the trailer in a cage. Another cage housed lovebirds. One crate in particular quacked protestingly as Messrs. Parker and Spaldini carried it in. It contained feathered folk of the same general character as ducks.

"How on earth," Kinks asked Sally, "is he going to keep ducks and things in his room?"

"We've a chicken house and no chickens. The ducks and things can have that. And you, my pet, are going to build a rabbit hutch down by the barn."

"Good night," said Kinks. "All I do is work when I want to be telling you what a swell gal you are. How many rabbits does this guy carry around with him?"

"Fourteen," said Sally cheerfully. "He told me so himself."

"Well," said Kinks, "I've never built any rabbit hutches, but I'll try anything once. That's the kind of a guy . . ."

He stopped suddenly as the sound of a motor came to their ears. A car was coming up the driveway.

"Now what?" Kinks said. "It seems to be Wilton," said Sally. She gave him a mischievous glance. "Shall I invite him to dinner?"

HOLLYHOCK HAS BLACK BLOOMS

An exhibit of black hollyhocks exhibited by Louis B. Tim, of Long Beach, N. J., was one of the striking features of the ninth annual show of the Metropolitan Gladiolus Society at Rockefeller Center in New York City, last week, says the Christian Science Monitor. Thousands of blooms were on display in 80 classes set up for competition among growers from the Middle Atlantic States and New England.

While gladioluses were the feature of the show, no one could remember seeing double, black hollyhocks before, and thus Mr. Tim's entry had the major share of attention. Interest, moreover, was not diminished by the fact the origin of the flowers remained somewhat of a mystery.

Twelve or 14 hollyhock plants bearing the unusual flowers grew from a miscellaneous collection of seed given him by a friend and sown largely as a favor, Mr. Tim said. Since the friend was not aware of the ancestral background of his seed, the lineage of the black flowers could not be traced, but that did not keep visitors to the show from admiring the glossy petals.

Flower arrangement with a view to color harmony brought recognition to Mrs. Frederick W. Lewis, of Little Neck, N. Y., whose work with deep red gladioluses against a background of reddish canna leaves, mounted on a pedestal of red wood, won her first prize. Mrs. Lewis had another first prize for her arrangement of blue and lavender blossoms in a lavender vase on a black base, and a second prize for an array of small salmon-colored blooms in a wicker basket.

GARDEN PARTY TO BE AT MANDY HOME

An opportunity to spend a pleasant afternoon in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Allen A. Mandy, 1325 Orange avenue, will be afforded guests at a garden party to be held August 24, on the anniversary of a similar event given a year ago. The party is to be a benefit affair and members of St. Anne's Altar society are to be hostesses. Proceeds are to go to St. Anne's building fund.

The Mandy garden is centered with a mulberry tree which is being trained to form a giant umbrella. Gardeners will be interested in the bright flowers about them including giant marigolds and chrysanthemums which came from Holland. Blossoming of a bed of carnations is eagerly awaited by the Mandys as the plants have been grown from seed and a

Robins Trick Foes In Bird Battle

Two robins and a woodpecker had a three-day battle while contesting each other's rights to establish a home in the entrance to a hollow limb.

The woodpecker had amply up-hoisted the hollow limb with cotton wadding. Then the bird left on a short trip.

When it returned, two robins had taken possession of the hollow limb. The battle began. The woodpecker and the robins were alternately victorious.

Finally, the robins outwitted the woodpecker. They sealed up the entrance to the limb with mud and grass, keeping out their enemy.

PLANS FIGHT TO SAVE OIL LANDS

Jimmie Fidler
in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—Setting Around (Warner Brothers): You can divide the personalities of this or any other lot into two principal groups—character actors and stars. And the character actors, though less publicized and poorer paid, have all the best of it.

Most of them are veterans of the stage—experienced troupers for whom the most difficult assignment is just another job to be done. Because they play a greater diversity of parts, the public tires of them less quickly. Personal appearance is less important to them than to the glamour girls and boys who rate top billing—consequently they have the pleasure of eating what they want when they want it. They are not afraid of growing old, for age, in their branch of the profession, usually means more, rather than less employment. And they are not blamed for the poor pictures in which they play. A star is, Three or four box office flops in a row and it's curtains for him.

Strolling around this lot today, I saw only two stars who were in the top bracket five years ago. But I met at least two dozen high-ranking character actors who were in the big money when sound was only an optimist's dream. While stars have been born, lived their brief but spectacular lives, and fallen into oblivion, those oldsters have gone placidly along, playing interesting parts, acquiring fortunes and building permanent homes. They are the only actors in town who can achieve real security.

Odd the way nerve tension on the part of one set-worker quickly affects everyone else. It happened today on the "Curtain Call" set. Kay Francis had bawled her lines once or twice and grown nervous. Director Busby Berkeley, usually one of the most placid of men, grew fust and began shrieking "Quiet" at every little, unavoidable noise. His three assistants echoed his commands, each one trying to out-shout the other. You could have felt the tension like a physical force. And then Kay, whose jitters had started it all, got herself in hand. "Busby," she laughed, "let's all calm down. Perhaps if you wouldn't shout for quiet so loudly, it might help." Berkeley, very embarrassed, settled back in his chair—and Kay played the next scene flawlessly.

Errol Flynn and David Niven, playing officers in the war-time aviation drama, "Dawn Patrol," were doing a mess-hall scene. The camera whirled and Niven, supposedly nursing a bad hangover, staggered into the scene and accepted a cup of black coffee from Flynn, who amused himself by making bright quips about the sufferer's condition. The scene finished, David remarked, grimly: "You know, Errol, if I felt as badly as I'm supposed to feel . . . and you made the same cracks that you do for this picture, I'd shoot you." Errol grinned. "Not if you had the hangover this script calls for," he said. "You wouldn't be able to see me!"

WANT TO COAT IRON WITH ZINC? —JUST CALL COUNTY LIBRARY

Do you want to know how to coat iron pipe with melted zinc? Probably you don't. But if you do—Ask the county library. They, examination. They'll show you how to run a dairy. Or tell you all about acoustics, if you should get curious about acoustics.

They've Done 'Em!

How do you know they can tell you all that? Because they've done each of those things during the past year. Anyway they can dig up a book that will tell you what you want to know.

The county library filled such special requests for 11,789 persons during the past year, according to the annual report just filed by Librarian Carma Zimmerman.

WORK RUSHED ON NEW STUDENT HANDBOOK FOR JAYSEE FROSH

Work is progressing rapidly on the Santa Ana Junior college student handbook which each year is issued to new students. Walter Swanberger is editor of the publication this year.

The handbook contains information about the faculty and administration, student organizations, and activities, as well as schedule of athletic events. Track records of the college also are printed.

Informing Students

The Associated Student constitution is published in the magazine along with student and faculty administration rules. Purpose of the book is to acquaint new students with the various regulations and activities of the college.

Published by the Associated Students of the jaysee, the book is expected to go to press by Aug. 26. It will be printed in the college Fine Arts Press under the printing supervision of Thomas E. Williams, director.

Distribution of the book will be made during Freshman Days to be held Sept. 6, 7, and 8. The English placement test will be held Thursday, Sept. 6 at 1:30 p. m. while the college aptitude test will be given for all new students Wednesday, Sept. 7 at the same time.

Registration is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Sept. 8 and 9. Registration and payment of fees of students previously enrolled will be conducted Thursday, Sept. 8, from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. for those with surnames L to Z; 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. surnames A-K. Registrar Mabel G. Whiting is in charge.

C. E. Societies To Stage Bonfire Rally Friday

A huge bonfire rally that will attract members of Christian Endeavor societies from all parts of Orange county will be held in the bed of the Santa Ana River near the Ocean boulevard bridge at 7 p. m. Friday, it was announced today by W. Kenneth Beard, society press chairman.

Chief speaker of the evening will be Logan Wheatley, dean of men at Fullerton junior college. Paul Chamlee will lead the community singing. The program has been arranged by Karl Harris and is sponsored by the Christian Endeavor union of the county.

SAN CLEMENTE, Aug. 18.—Miss Katherine Ridgeway, violin, and Miss Olive Campbell, piano, guest artists of Riverside, and Mrs. G. Orville Jones, San Clemente artist, will appear on a program next Monday afternoon, when Mrs. F. A. Nedermeyer and her daughters, Mrs. Barney Sheehane and Mrs. John Fate, entertain at the Social club.

Beach Chamber Fetes Veterans

Members of Jack Fisher chapter, No. 23, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, last night were the guests of the Newport-Balboa Chamber of Commerce at the annual water picnic of the group that included a dinner at the American Legion Hut and a moonlight boat ride.

Claude Pullen of Newport Beach was in charge of arrangements for the affair that was voted an outstanding success by the post members and their families.

Stone-Throwing Gang Is Sought

Four or five Anaheim boys who have been entertaining themselves by using sling-shots to stone the streamline trains which travel near Anaheim at the intersection of Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railroad tracks, were sought unsuccessfully by sheriff's officers yesterday. Deputies James Musick and John Gilmore reported the youth had disappeared when they arrived. The stoning has been done at the first bridge east of the Anaheim tower where the railroad tracks intersect.

PLAN ANTIBES BALL

On Friday evening, Aug. 26, the Antibes Ball, so named because of the close geographical resemblance of San Clemente to the point of Antibes on the French Riviera, will be held at the Casino San Clemente, according to Tom Devine, manager of the casino. "The Antibes Ball," said Devine, "is not a costume ball, but a party given in the spirit of the artists, who, living at Cap d'Antibes on the French Riviera arranged to have a ball marking the height of the summer season, and having no formal dress, gave the ball regardless, wearing only their beach or sport clothes. In that spirit everyone is invited to the Casino San Clemente for the occasion.

Numerous tropical plants that grow in the upper branches of trees throw out cable-like roots, which grow to the ground and take hold.

Where Battle Looms Over Tideland Oil Properties

Pictured above is an area of approximately 10 square miles along Orange county's coastline that is scheduled to become the battlefield for partition of Interior to give them permission to take over the oil drilling and oil pumping equipment within the area, according to Ralph F. Forch, president of the United Landowners' Association. The association is prepared to fight the "attempted land grab." The applicants, the attorney general to assert title to the tidelands for a naval petroleum reserve.

STATE FIRE TRUCKS TO GET NEW RADIOS

Two-way radio equipment will be extended to state fire trucks operating in Orange county, according to authority granted by the supervisors yesterday to State Ranger Joe Scherman.

The equipment will be placed on two trucks at first, to test the plan, and will be applied to all trucks if found beneficial. No additional appropriation will be needed for the two trucks, Scherman said.

Offer Received

An offer by the Yorba Linda volunteer fire department to donate their truck to the county, on condition it be kept in the Yorba Linda area, was presented to the board through Scherman. It was referred back to the fire company for revision, and probably will come before the board again next Tuesday.

Tustin Plant Hurls Challenge Toward Kansas

If a sunflower at the J. H. Whitney home at 320 West First street, Tustin, is any criterion, Orange county may some day take honors away from Kansas, the Sunflower state.

The Whitney sunflower measures 13 feet in height and is a volunteer growth. There are several other sunflowers in the yard but they are small in size compared to the "big fellow," being six and eight feet in height.

The Maine legislature includes two Indians.

ORANGE COUNTY AREA INVOLVED

An area of approximately ten square miles, covering the mouth of the Santa Ana river, extending almost two miles off shore and returning three miles inland just west and parallel to the river, has been claimed by aspiring oil operators, Ralph F. Forch, president of the United Landowners' association told association members in a meeting in the Subway Terminal building today.

Federal Locations

Within this area, Forch said, 13 applicants have placed federal locations and have asked the United States Department of Interior to give them permission virtually to take over oil drilling and oil pumping equipment already within the area, and further permission to "develop" the oil-bearing tideland. This step was taken, Forch said, apparently in the belief that the federal government will encounter no opposition when, as is expected, the Nye resolution will probably be revived in Congress next January.

Blocked In Committee

The Nye resolution, passed in the last session of the Senate, but blocked in committee in the House, directs the U. S. attorney general to go to court to assert title to California's tidelands for a naval petroleum reserve.

"But we have organized and we are prepared to fight this attempted grab. It menaces every oil operator, oil landholder, either directly or indirectly every line of business, and will logically attack the property laws of every state in the union. The association is a coalition of leading California oil, mining, shipping, real estate, banking and insurance firms. We will fight to protect California's property owners and, above all, her state sovereignty."

Quartet Gives Dinner Affair At The Beach

Giving an informal dinner party last night at the Cove, Mrs. Sara Johnston Haddon and Mrs. William Taylor Stearns, who are vacationing at the beach home, were joined in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Dunning of this city.

The hosts followed much the same plan as has been observed for earlier functions opening this summertime series of parties. Shasta daisies and marigolds were the flowers which added to the inviting setting.

Following the serving of dinner, bridge was in play. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dinsmore's score entitled them to the high couple prize. Mrs. Ray Chandler and A. G. Flagg won awards for their individual score.

Program Plans Made By Homocraft Section

Mrs. W. L. Harbert, leader of Woman's club Homocraft section, outlined plans for the group's 1938-39 program when members met yesterday afternoon in Jack Fisher park for covered-dish luncheon.

The first regular meeting of the fall term will be held September 21 when members will visit Bowlers Memorial museum.

Present were Mrs. L. E. Tarbox, Woman's club president, and Mesdames W. L. Harbert, J. G. Limbird, F. W. Dean, Leonard Musick, L. G. Holman, P. A. Martin, E. A. Elwell and Mrs. Elwell's guest, her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Jenkins.

Department President Visits Auxiliary

Mrs. Bessie Dierks of Wichita, Kans., department president of U. S. W. V. Auxiliary was special guest Tuesday night at Calumet Auxiliary meeting conducted in K. C. hall by the president, Mrs. Luella Randal.

Following a brief talk given by the honor guest, Chaplain Maude Brown draped the charter in memory of Mrs. Mae Glaze, who was past department president of California and member of the Santa Ana Auxiliary.

Mrs. Brown reported that food, flowers, clothing and cash had been distributed to the amount of $38. Elizabeth Erickson, chairman of Child's Welfare committee, told of philanthropic work valued at $34.

A public card party was announced for Tuesday, August 30, at 3 p.m. Committee in charge is composed of Mrs. Effie Hawley, Mrs. Catherine Reagan and Mrs. Bess Moberly.

A report of the Citrus Belt picnic at Sawville, August 14, was given by Mrs. Jean Tantlinger. Committee members in charge of the next regular petting supper, August 23, at 6:30 p.m. in K. C. hall are Mesdames Ruth Hess, Bertha Helmer, Edna Hopson, Phoebe Hyatt and Cora Judson.

Courtesy night will be observed September 6, the date of the next regular meeting. On the refreshment committee are Mesdames Jean Tantlinger, Annie Patmor, Cora Bauer, Ann Springer, and Levlina Wood.

Adelia McVey Plans Church Rites In Fall

Choosing October 1 as the day for her wedding to Robert Ramm, Miss Adelia McVey announced the romantic news to guests at a dessert bridge party Tuesday evening in the home of Mr. Ramm's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ramm of Anaheim.

The bride-elect, daughter of Mrs. Alice McVey, 522 1-2 South Van Ness avenue, is employed in the local office of Southern Counties Gas Company. Coming here from Brawley several years ago, she attended Santa Ana high school and Junior college. Her fiancé is with Texaco company in Orange.

Guests at Tuesday night's party were presented with the loveliest of corsage bouquets. The mystery gardenias which Miss McVey received were from the bride-groom-to-be. Decorations in green and white included the table centerpieces, small boxes containing favors for everyone. One of the guests received a balloon which, when inflated, showed the names of the betrothed pair, together with the selected autumn date.

The rites will take place in Santa Ana First Baptist church.

Following the serving of dessert, bridge was played in the attractive party setting, which included quantities of flowers. There were prizes for Miss Ruth Wasson and Miss Henrietta Jinnett, who held high and low scores.

In the group with Miss McVey were Mrs. Claire Lampman, Mrs. Laura Price and the Misses Henrietta Jinnett, Phyllis Hefke, Carnelle Swain, Ruth Wasson, Santa Ana; Mrs. Herbert Ramm, Anaheim; Miss Phyllis Koch, Covina; Miss Mary Blocher and Miss Margaret Whitlow, Pomona; and Miss Ciella Brubaker, Glendora.

Mixing Bowl

BY ANN MEREDITH

A meal of all-cold food isn't just what your doctor would order in hot weather. Have at least one hot dish to offset the cold. Don't make a martyr of yourself in its preparation. Suppose you had a big bowl salad, heated rolls and iced tea for the evening meal. Begin the meal with a rich hot soup and you'll find your family better fed and more contented. I suggest this luscious chicken soup.

Cream Chicken Soup

3 pints of freshly made chicken broth or
3 cans of chicken broth with water to make up 3 pints altogether.
4 hard boiled eggs.
1 cup bread crumbs grated from soft part of loaf, then moistened with a little milk.
2 cups rich top milk, scalded.
Chopped parsley, salt and pepper.

Separate yolks from whites of boiled eggs, mash and blend the yolks before mixing with the crumbs and milk. Into this egg-crumbs part stir the 2 cups of rich top milk (thin cream), then add to the boiling broth. Cook gently for 5 minutes, take off fire and add the boiled egg whites, cut in thin strips, and enough parsley, etc., to flavor nicely. Serve in bowls with crackers.

The remark has been made here many times: A bird can't fly with one wing any better than you can successfully use a reducing diet without a calory list. Write for one today; there is no charge if you contribute one of your good recipes and a stamped, return-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Red Cabbage Pickle

Shred a quantity of red cabbage fine.
Sprinkle with salt, cover and let stand 24 hours. Drain away all brine, pack cabbage in clean hot jars and cover with this boiling hot pickle:
1 cup sugar to 1 gallon mild vinegar.
1 tablespoon celery seed.
1-2 teaspoon, each, ground pepper, mace, all-spice and cinnamon. After filling and sealing the jars stand them in a deep kettle of boiling water (off the stove) and let the jars cool in the water. Store in a cool dark place.

Sour Cream Spice Cake With Baked Meringue
2 extra yolks and
2 eggs, beaten to thick froth.
1 cup white sugar gradually beaten into frothed eggs.
1 cup rich thick sour cream mixed with
1-2 teaspoon soda. Add to eggs and sugar and beat well.
Sift twice:
2 cups pre-sifted cake flour, with 2 teaspoons baking powder.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1-2 teaspoon, each, ground cloves, allspice and nutmeg.
1 teaspoon vanilla and 1-4 cup melted butter added to batter last. Prepare eggs, sugar and sour cream as directed. Sift flour several times and beat it smoothly into the egg part. Add vanilla and melted butter, give the batter a final whipping and spoon it into a 10 by 10 inch pan, generously buttered. Don't bake it just yet for it must get its meringue top, but do pre-heat the oven to 375 degrees while the meringue is being made.

Meringue Top

Whip the 2 unused egg whites to a froth, and by the small teaspoonful, whip in 1 cup brown sugar and a dusting of cinnamon. Stir through the meringue 1-2 cup chopped walnuts, pile on the unbaked cake and pop into the oven (protect top with paper). Bake until well risen, then cut heat to 350 degrees and bake about 30 minutes longer.

August Anniversaries Observed During Park Picnic

Members of a family group who have birthdays in August, were honored Tuesday night at a picnic dinner in Irvine park, where relatives from various Southland points assembled for an annual reunion.

Dahlias and marigolds in pottery bowls brightened tables at which basket dinner was served. "Our Gang, 1938" was the phrase inscribed on a prettily-decorated birthday cake.

Sharing the affair were Messrs. and Mesdames O. H. Dunkin, Claude Dunkin and son, Donald; George Padias, Bun Dunkin, Roy Dunkin, Ira Mann and children, Vivian, Robert and Darrell; E. F. Wickersheim and son, Edward; Chester Siegel and son, Richard; J. J. Williams; Mrs. Ruth Saw-Gisler, Stella Engelman. They will carry out plans for the party with the assistance of a large staff of workers.

Messrs. and Mesdames Roy Cavett, Herbert Hermance and children, Vergene and Jackie; E. E. Hermance and children, Donna Dee and Janice Joan; Clark Hermance and son, all of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eldridge and sons, Roy and Alvin; Mrs. Martha Dunkin, Corona Del Mar; Mrs. Stella Dick, Tulsa, Okla. Absent members of the family were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McNary of Modesto.

Staff Members Share Hospitality Of the Carl Thrashers

Ever since Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Thrasher established their home at Orange Park Acres a few years ago, they have received feminine members of The Register staff for an informal summertime party such as last night's at fresco affair. Guests donned slacks and sweaters for the occasion, enjoying the informality of a garden supper served at one long picnic table. Preparing the hucious steaks on the outdoor grill, Mr. Thatcher had assistance of E. Wilbur Ellis.

On previous occasions, these summer get-togethers have offered members of the staff opportunity to honor one of the group, and last night's event was no exception. Mrs. John Waters (Virginia Weeks) a bride of last spring, was presented with a lace tablecloth as a gift of her assembled co-workers.

The group took part in a series of games in the large living room, which had been decked with roses from the garden. A special prize of imported perfumes was won by Miss Kay Blake.

Co-Hostesses Preside At Garden Luncheon

Mrs. Mabel Lambert of this city joined Mrs. Alice T. Smith in entertaining members of the B. Y. T. association of Orange County early this week in the Smith home in Garden Grove.

Gardens at the rear of the home provided setting for buffet luncheon served at 1 o'clock. Dahlias which adorned the table were sent in by Mrs. J. A. Williams.

Plans were made to entertain husbands of members September 10 at covered-dish dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruns at Balboa.

Present were Mrs. Flora Bruns, Miss Henrietta Bohling, Mrs. Mabel Lambert, Santa Ana; Mrs. Nettie Kirk, Anaheim; Mrs. Jean McAdams, Huntington Beach; Mrs. Gwendolyn Thompson, Orange; Mrs. Vida Snell, Long Beach; Mrs. Edna Leutwiler, La Habra; Mrs. Roselyn Jackson, Brea; and Mrs. Alice T. Smith, Garden Grove.

Hermosa O. E. S.

Initiation rites were conducted as a feature of this week's meeting of Hermosa chapter O. E. S. in Masonic temple, where members assembled for business matters and a program.

Mrs. Carrie B. Quinn of Wells, Minn., and Mrs. Stella Rowland of Iowa City, Ia., were guests.

Mrs. Edith Snow was chairman of a program opened with vocal solos by Mrs. John P. Williams. When Miss Marjorie Ball sang a group of numbers, she was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ann Uiseth.

Watermelon was served by a committee headed by Mrs. Robert White. Mrs. Helen Lurker had arranged table decorations, which included bouquets of fuschias.

Holding to be stimulant, the Koran prohibited the use of coffee, but Mohammedans drank it frequently, and addicts were threatened with severe penalties under early Mohammedan law.

Co-Hostesses Entertain At Bridal Shower

Inviting a group of mothers and daughters to share their hospitality, Mrs. John McAuley and her daughter, Mrs. Chris Ema were co-hostesses Tuesday night at a bathroom shower in compliment to Miss Frances Was, fiancée of Jack Lindsey.

Lavender and pink asters decorated the McAuley home, 1319 North Broadway for the party. Winning prizes for their high scores in coffee were Mrs. Arthur Lindro and Miss Margaret Munro. Tallies of clever design were ornamented with miniature bathroom shower curtains.

The co-hostesses furthered the prevailing theme at the table where guests were seated during the refreshment interval. Colorful nut-cups were at each place. Miss Was was showered with bathroom accessories, most of which were in yellow.

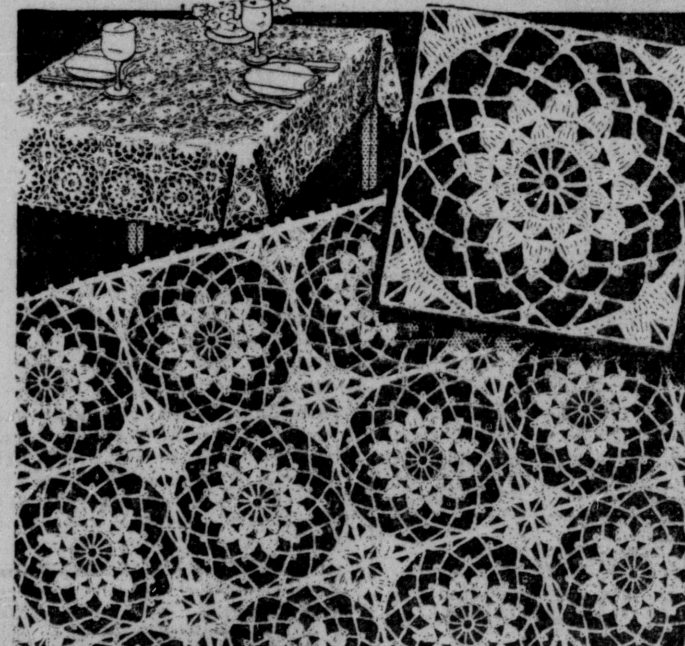

Assisting Mrs. McAuley and Mrs. Ema during the evening were their daughter and sister, Mrs. William Hill. Mrs. Hill's little daughter, Nancy Joanne, who will be three months old August 24, was quite the center of interest during the evening.

Others present were Miss Was and her mother, Mrs. Frank Was; Mr. Lindsey's mother, Mrs. Arthur Lindsey; Mrs. George Angne and Miss Polly Angne; Mrs. Hugh Heaney and Miss Grace Heaney; Mrs. George Munro and the Misses Margaret and Jean Munro; Mrs. O. Scott McFarland and Miss Mary Lou McFarland; Mrs. Harry Warner and Miss Barbara Warner; Mrs. Ira Knoese, Miss Betty McAuley, Miss Elizabeth Sturtevant, all of this vicinity; Mrs. Roy Kemper and Miss Mildred Kemper, San Bernardino.

Crawfords Home From Nevada Trip

OLIVE, Aug. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Crawford have arrived home after a combined business and vacation trip which took them into Northern California and Nevada. At Point Richmond they visited Mr. and Mrs. John Coward, and at San Francisco they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy West, all relatives of Mr. Crawford. All Davis they inspected the Pacific Coast Bee Culture laboratory in which Mr. Crawford was much interested as he maintains an apiary.

The couple toured Lassen Volcanic National park, where they had an interesting encounter with one of the bears protected on the park preserve. All foodstuffs having been locked in their car, the couple retired, to be awakened by a loud ripping sound. A large bear had torn the top from the car and had helped himself to honey and bacon.

Yuma Wedding Of Couple Announced

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Roam of Mission Court, yesterday announced the marriage of their granddaughter, Miss Thelma Stuart, who has made her home with her grandparents since coming to California from Iowa last March, to Ronald Boring, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Boring, South Orange street residents.

The marriage took place August 8 in the Presbyterian manse at Yuma, Ariz., with the Rev. Mr. Atchison, pastor of the church, officiating. Members of the minister's family were witnesses.

Miss Stuart chose for her wedding ensemble a smart white frock with matching coat, hat and accessories. She wore a gardenia corsage. The young couple returned to San Diego where they spent several days, visiting nearby points of interest. They plan to make their home in Orange.

RETURNS FROM EAST

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Mrs. F. E. Brown, 313 North Center street, arrived home recently from an eight-weeks' trip that took her to many interesting points in the eastern part of the nation. Accompanying her was her sister, Mrs. A. J. Leary, of Santa Monica. They visited in Indiana and New York, and in New Jersey they visited relatives. On the return trip they were accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Estelle Winters, who formerly made her home with Mrs. Brown but who has been visiting in New Jersey for the past year. She will live in Southern California.

AUTO TIRE STOLEN

Timothy Thomas Tibbets, 25, of Los Angeles, was cited yesterday by Orange police for speeding.

LIONS TOLD OF TRIP TO RUSSIA

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—A. J. Lasby, of Santa Ana, was guest speaker at the Orange Lions club yesterday at the regular noon luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Lasby together with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Burke made a world tour some time ago and brought home many interesting observations. Yesterday's talk was based on the trip through Russia.

Lasby reported that the party traveled 6000 miles through Siberia to Moscow without seeing a person smile. Only three indications of children at play were seen, and no person gave an indication of having heard when the tourists spoke on the street.

At Moscow, Lasby stated, the attitude was different, though it is almost impossible to get information. The party walked to all points of interest, as taxi drivers are admittedly spies and will drive the tourists only where they are ordered by the government, he said. On the railroad train, it was noted that one-third of the section hands were women.

In spite of the purges and recent trouble, Lasby stated, he believes that Russia is slowly swinging back to the capitalist form of government.

Russ Caldwell was program chairman and introduced the speaker, President Martell Thompson led the business meeting.

SILVER ACRES

SILVER ACRES, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Charles Patterson entertained her sewing group recently. At the refreshment hour the hostess served ice cream and cake, with coffee to the guests, Mrs. Bessie Marks, of Orange; Mrs. Hubert Head, of Garden Grove; and Mrs. Grace Neff, of Orange.

METHODIST CHURCH LEADERS OUTLINE YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Announcement that Dr. Carl Knopf will speak at six church night services to be held at the First Methodist church was made last night at a session of department heads, class presidents and organization heads. The Rev. Arthur T. Hobson presided and plans for Wednesday night services throughout the year were made.

Dr. Knopf, well known authority on the Bible and instructor at U. S. C., will begin the series of talks on January 4 and close them on February 8. Other outstanding events planned was participation in a county wide leadership training school at the Santa Ana First Methodist church October 4 to November 1, when the Rev. Mr. Hobson will be registrar. R. C. Patton, Orange, will be in charge of publicity. The Rev. R. Bell Swinerton, of Anaheim, will be dean.

Training School Nov. 7
Orange churches affiliated with the Ministerial Union will hold a training school which will open November 7 with R. C. Patton as dean. On October 10, a world service conference for all churches in Orange county will be held at the preliminary one in regard to local church activities. Definite plans were made for a number of Wednesday night services throughout the year, beginning in October. Two family night sessions will be held in this month, one on October 13, with the Women's Aid society, in charge and one on October 26, with the Women's Home Missionary society in charge.

On November 16 a mother and son banquet will be held in place of the usual father and son event. The banquet will be in charge of the Benedictine class and the boys' work committee of which H. E. Gilton is lead. November 30 has been set as the date for the church bazaar.

Quarterly Conference
In December the first quarterly conference will be conducted by Dr. J. E. Dunning, of Santa Ana, and on December 14 the Wednesday night service will be in charge of the church school. December marks the date for two Christmas parties, one in the afternoon for the elementary department and one in the evening for the intermediate department. Miss Azalia Bebermeyer will make arrangements in conjunction with the Fideis class. A young people's home coming banquet is set for December 28.

VISITS IN ORANGE
ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Bessie Jane Dierks of Wichita, Kans., is visiting in the home of Mrs. W. E. Clement, 545 South Grand street. Mrs. Dierks is Kansas state president of the auxiliary of Spanish-American War veterans, and in two weeks will go from Southern California to Portland, Ore., where she will attend the national convention of the auxiliary.

Placentia Gets New P. O. Board
PLACENTIA, Aug. 18.—Two employees of the Placentia postoffice have received appointments to a new civil service board being set up. With appointment of the two members, one as secretary and one as board member, the new board will begin to function immediately.

The secretary's job was given to Mrs. Clara H. Dutton, while Richard H. White was named board member. Both are clerks in the Placentia post office. Mrs. Dutton is a Republican and White a Democrat.

Both appointments were made by Harry T. Kranz, manager of the twelfth civil service district, at San Francisco, on the recommendations of the Placentia postmaster. Placentia became eligible for a civil service board of its own when its post office was given second class status July 1.

HOLD O.E.S. PROGRAM
ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Orange Eastern Star members were well represented last night when officers' courtesy night was observed by Anil Tai chapter, O.E.S., of Fullerton. Mrs. Gwendolyn Thompson served as treasurer for the evening and musicians were Charles Armstrong who sang three numbers, accompanied by Miss Jaenice Winget, Mrs. Percy Davis and Mrs. John Powell, also of Orange, attended.

CONDITIONS IN CHINA OUTLINED

ORANGE, Aug. 18.—Impressions of the Orient, where he spent a number of years, were given last night by Gus Baldwin, of Laguna Beach, at a meeting of the 20-30 club at the Sunshine Broler with Harold Thomas presiding and Bill Hart Jr. serving as program chairman.

Baldwin discussed the undeclared war between Japan and China. He expressed the opinion that Japan would be unable to conquer the Chinese owing to the tremendous man power in China and the fact that the Chinese soldiers had exhibited bravery equal if not superior to that of the Japanese.

Plans were made for a joint meeting of the Anaheim and Orange 20-30 clubs at the Marigold cafe in Anaheim August 22. Jesse L. Elliott, of Santa Ana, candidate for sheriff, made a short talk.

BOLSA

BOLSA, Aug. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hoke, formerly of Bolsa, visited friends here this week. They have just returned from an extended trip into Oregon and are located at Anaheim.

Ed Wallingford, brother of I. D. Wallingford, visited here following his return from the former Wallingford home in Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Wallingford visited the first of the week in San Diego with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Wallingford and were accompanied on the trip by friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Munson, of Santa Ana.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Conrady have left for Oregon, called by the serious illness of Mr. Conrady's brother.

Miss Nellie Vogelzang, who has been the guest of her sister, Miss Frances Vogelzang in Los Angeles has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Allen are home from a vacation trip to Arizona.

RETURN FROM CABIN

SMELTZER, Aug. 18.—A two weeks stay at their mountain summer cabin at Lake Arrowhead was completed Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Pyle, who were accompanied home by Mrs. Pyle's sister, Mrs. John Kettler, and daughter, Miss Mary Kettler, a friend of the latter, Miss Beverly Bennett, of El Torro, who had been the Pyles house guests since Sunday. A group of Santa Ana friends were entertained one day of their stay by the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Shippe, Mrs. Lillian Dawson and Herman Schacht.

Oranges.... without Christmas

Number 1

DO YOU remember when oranges were scarcely ever seen except in Christmas stockings? They were expensive too. It was a great thing for us when the orange was promoted to a regular place on our year-round breakfast table. Now the drinking of delicious, healthful orange juice is a universal custom.

What brought about this change? It was accomplished entirely by advertising. Farmers who raised oranges wanted to sell more of them and they advertised the benefits of drinking orange juice. Many of us tried it and liked it, and we bought more oranges. Production of oranges went up and prices came down. Annual consumption of oranges increased from 7 per capita to 58, and everybody is happier for it, consumers, farmers, railroads, and grocers.

A distinguished physician recently described how he and other nutrition experts had tried for years to educate the public to drink tomato juice. But they didn't get anywhere. Then certain food companies started canning tomato juice. They advertised its pleasing taste and health-giving properties. As a direct result, nearly everybody drinks tomato juice now, and in 1937 the public bought 5,750,000 cases of it.

Spinach, long known as a valuable food, has been the bane of many a youngster's existence. To make children eat it was like pulling teeth. Then, along came Popeye the Sailor. Backed by an advertising appropriation, he actually converted children into enthusiastic spinach-eaters. Popeye's thousands of fans want to be strong, and they thoroughly enjoy their spinach.

Once upon a time, the Roman Emperor Augustus was in a bad way, suffering from some sort of diet ailment. A traveling doctor fed the Emperor on lettuce leaves and he got well. Even that long ago, it seems that somebody knew about the value of green leaves in the human diet. Members of his court imitated the Emperor's eating habits and all began eating salads made of lettuce leaves.

But there was no advertising in those days, and salad eating did not become a general custom. Centuries later, Napoleon knew about the value of this kind of food, for he ate it daily. When in the field, his chef prepared salads of green leaves from a nearby tree, if lettuce was not available. But the general public was not greatly influenced by Napoleon's eccentric eating habits.

In this country, less than a generation ago, green salads were almost unknown in the average home. Today we are a nation of salad-eaters. What caused this remarkable change? Advertising, and almost nothing else. Companies that sell dressing and other salad ingredients have educated the public to the health value of fresh green leaves and have taught people how to prepare salads. As a consequence, the average person's diet has become lighter and decidedly more healthful.

Oranges, tomato juice, spinach and salads. These are only a few of the better foods popularized by advertising. There are many more, and the American table is now the best in the world. The good work continues. Advertising puts more health in our food and more zest in our meals.

KEEPING THINGS NICE
"How do you keep things so nice with all those children about?"
"Then don't do much damage. Now and then somebody scratches something, or breaks something, but not often. They're not careless about such things." "I wish I could say the same. My house looks a sight, and it is no older than yours. I've talked and preached about taking care of things and being careful to keep them nice, but the chairs are battered and the tables are knicked. I'm ashamed to have anybody see things as they are, but there isn't any sense in getting new ones. They'd be just the same at the end of a month. My children are very active and healthy and I will say I have tried to make their home a place where they could stay and feel at home. After all it is their home."
"That is true," said the lady with the "nice" home. "And they do enjoy keeping it nice for themselves and their friends, I'm sure." You have seen both sorts of homes. Both mothers trying to rear their children to love their homes, to help care for them and keep them looking well. One succeeds and the other fails. The reason is in the way the mother tried to solve her problem. One taught the children to use things with care, to respect and like them. The other taught them to use them without restraint, respect or care, and had to grieve over the result.
Children have to be trained to live in houses. The way to do that is to let them work at the job of living in a house. Show them, by example, how to pick up and set down a china or a fragile vase. They have a dainty touch and a firm hold and soon manage beautifully. Tell them about the use and beauty of the things they handle daily. When they are little give them things of their own to use and learn to like through associations. Mugs, spoons, chairs, tables, dishes, toys given them to own and care for as their elders own and care for things; teach them to "keep things nice." They won't have to be nagged to do that if the family practice strengthens the idea.
There are people who give children ugly things for their use because they will soon break them and replacing them will not cost so much. That sets the habit of rough handling, free breakage, disrespect for things that are seemingly so unimportant, and are actually so ugly. Give a child a good dinner or breakfast service; handle it daintily; show him its beauty; speak of its value in time to come. "You'll like to have it to show your little boy when you are a man." And see what happens. The whole of the business lies in the attitude of the grown-ups who are managing it.

I am not advocating a show home or room for children. But I would emphasize that children take care of lovely things, can be trusted with them, grow up with them and love them, if given a chance to do so. If home is furnished so that it will, with reasonable care, stand up, the children will, if given reasonable training, help to maintain it.

NEW YORK (UP)—A black clad man was the first to speak to Lou Ambers after he returned to his dressing room last night without the lightweight title.

He threw his arm around Lou's sweaty shoulders and said:

"God bless you, Lou. You're a great man."

Over 15,000 persons in the great arena outside agreed with him.

He was the Rev. Gustave Purification, a Catholic priest from Herkimer, N. Y., who allowed Ambers to learn how to box in the basement of his church.

Met Olivia de Havilland, who returned from San Diego where she had been making airplane sequences for "Wings Over Navy." (Please note that we are in an air cycle just now.) Olivia said she had a swell time; that the flying officers (quite understandably) had been very nice, indeed. "Only trouble was," Olivia laughed, "that none of them would take me up in a ship. One young lieutenant gallantly explained that the flyers didn't wish to risk the neck of one so lovely—meaning me. He was handsome—and I was treading clouds without going up when the commander spoiled it all. He told me naval regulations forbid civilians riding in service ships—I'm afraid his explanation was the true one."

Watched an amusing scene on the "Torchy Get Her Man" set. Glenda Farrell, the fearless girl reporter, was pursuing villainy. Ward Robertson, took a wrong turn and ended in a ditch containing four feet of water. As prop-man started to drag her out, she cried, "Don't touch me!" The doctor, present to attend Glenda should she be hurt, promptly jumped in to help. And at that she began to apologize. The sun was broiling hot, and already being wet, she had decided to enjoy the coolness of the water a little longer. "I know it all the time," the doctor replied. "I wanted to cool off, too." When I left Glenda was still eyeing the doctor speculatively, trying to decide whether he was a victim of the weather or of chivalry.

Henry O'Neill was supposed to waken Ronald Reagan in a scene for "Brother Rat" today. The shot was made right after lunch, when O'Neill shook Reagan. When O'Neill shook Reagan he found he was really sound asleep. "Come on, Ronnie," Director Keighley complained, "we're work-

Ambers Gets Cheers
Armstrong got the lightweight title. Ambers got the cheers. He was never more popular than at the moment when Madison Square Garden, a roaring, crazy place where men were throwing their hats away and women were screaming, went suddenly quiet and a voice boomed through the loudspeakers: "The winner and new lightweight champion of the world—Henry Armstrong!"

"Boo, boo, boo!" The roar of the crowd came rolling down from the rafters and Ambers stood there in a sweaty blue bathrobe with the empty look on his face of a man who just had bad news. Then he shuffled across the ring and stuck out his hand toward Armstrong and in those 10 paces he walked into the hearts of those who saw it.

One thin round decided the fight. Judge Marty Monroe gave the decision to Ambers, eight to seven; Judge George Leon gave Armstrong eight rounds, Ambers six and called one even. That left it up to Referee Bill Calverley who gave Armstrong seven, Ambers five and called two even. The United Press score sheet gave Armstrong eight, Ambers five and called two even.

Henry Fights Savagely
The Marquis of Queensberry would not have approved of everything that happened. Armstrong was throwing punches dangerously low and lost three rounds because he fouled Ambers. Rights and lefts went pumping into Ambers' stomach so fast that once Lou took eight blows before he could give one.

Everybody expected Armstrong to fight that way. He never took a backward step and once he got within range his arms never stopped pumping. The surprise was that Ambers, with one of the best pairs of legs in boxing and smooth in getting around the ring, decided to stand up and trade punches with Armstrong. He paid for it with blood and pain. In the fifth round Armstrong whistled a right that traveled a foot and a half, caught Ambers on the chin and knocked him down. The bell rang at the end of three Ambers' seconds rescued him. In the sixth round Armstrong rained rights and lefts to the head and again Ambers bounced to the floor, but he nodded resolutely to his seconds, calmly took a count of eight and came up fighting. In the 14th round Armstrong drove a right against the chin that sent Ambers reeling back keeping on his feet.

What was the way he came out of those last spins. He would wait for Armstrong to come to him and then get in close and pop-bop-bop hit uppercot the Negro. Twice he hit Armstrong so hard on the chin that the Negro's rubber moustache bounced out of his teeth and rolled across the ring.

And when it came it was Ambers, the loser, who was slinging the most punches and hitting so hard that blood spattered from Armstrong's mouth and made long crimson streaks on the white man's shoulders.

The doctor, present to attend Glenda should she be hurt, promptly jumped in to help. And at that she began to apologize. The sun was broiling hot, and already being wet, she had decided to enjoy the coolness of the water a little longer. "I know it all the time," the doctor replied. "I wanted to cool off, too." When I left Glenda was still eyeing the doctor speculatively, trying to decide whether he was a victim of the weather or of chivalry.

NEW YORK (UP)—A black clad man was the first to speak to Lou Ambers after he returned to his dressing room last night without the lightweight title.

He threw his arm around Lou's sweaty shoulders and said:

"God bless you, Lou. You're a great man."

Over 15,000 persons in the great arena outside agreed with him.

He was the Rev. Gustave Purification, a Catholic priest from Herkimer, N. Y., who allowed Ambers to learn how to box in the basement of his church.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Trading on the stock exchange today for the highest level since the summer advance started on June 20.

Priced moved irregularly. Traders were cautious about making commitments pending definite indications of the trend. However, experts said the market gave good account of itself since no important liquidation developed on the falling off in volume.

Bonds were narrow, except traction bonds, which were steady. The firm and cotton futures little changed.

The market resisted two important dividend reductions. International Harvester cut its dividend from 50 cents to 40 cents. The stock fell back to the previous close after registering a 1/2 point rise.

DRIVE CAREFULLY -SAVE A LIFE-

A VERY INFORMATIVE ARTICLE

With the public schools and colleges teaching that there is plenty of capital—plenty of tools—and the President of the United States saying "our industrial plant is built," what the voters believe about machines and additional capital to the people is of the utmost importance.

Undoubtedly it is because people do not understand how machines benefit the working man that we have had laws passed for the last quarter of a century that so stifled and crippled business that we now have 10 million people out of work.

Today we are reproducing on this page an article written on the subject of "Machines and Mankind" by Dr. James T. Thomas, President of Chrysler Institute of Engineering, because we believe that every citizen who reads this will have a little better conception of what government action will permit higher wages to be paid to all workers.

If you do not have time to read it today, lay the paper away for future reference because it certainly is worth every voter's time to read.

AIDING MARKETING COOPERATION

The Wisconsin State Department of Agriculture is carrying on some interesting activities on behalf of agricultural marketing cooperation.

County wide cooperatives are being created. Permanent headquarters are to be established. The membership is being brought together at periodic meetings. During the winter season, round-table talks will be held, and experts will discuss cooperative marketing and other phases of producer cooperation.

This is a worthwhile undertaking that is bound to produce results if the farmers are sensible enough to stick to their last, and not branch off into alien fields of business. Cooperation among producers, and the creation of a central bargaining authority to dispose of crops, is sound and profitable. Failure comes when cooperatives attempt something which is basically out of their line, such as merchandising. A successful marketing cooperative markets the produce of its members, and that's all.

TEACHING OLD DOGS NEW TRICKS

"The ancient saying that you can't teach an old dog new tricks, doesn't apply when it comes to teaching old drivers new skills and attitudes," says Dr. Herbert J. Stack of the National Conservation Bureau. "This goes for the adult pedestrian, too."

Dr. Stack describes some of the work that is being carried on in various communities to promote traffic safety—work that should and must be greatly extended if the death and fatality rate is to be reduced. In many places, police departments have taken the lead in providing scientific educational programs for drivers and pedestrians. Some departments have established schools for violators, and have found them to be extremely effective in educating the ignorant and curbing the reckless. Newspapers, radio and other media have done a splendid work in keeping the gravity of accident problem and its manifold solutions before the public.

Also, Dr. Stack said, an intelligently conducted educational campaign simplifies the task of identifying that small group of drivers which refuse to voluntarily mend their ways, and can be reached only by arrests, fines, or revocation of driving licenses.

One of the vital "musts" of any program is that it be permanent. As Dr. Stack warned, so-called "safety weeks" and similar hit-and-miss drives of brief duration, usually accomplish little or nothing. What good may be done is lost almost immediately unless the drive is followed by a consistent educational campaign that is in continual operation.

We've "dodged" the traffic safety issue too long. We've tried sporadic campaigns and seen them fail time after time. There's only one way out—and that is for every community, large or small, to go after the reckless, incompetent and ignorant driver with campaigns that will get results.

THE MACHINE AND MANKIND

Condensed from an address by Dr. James Thomas, President Chrysler Institute of Engineering, Detroit, Michigan, before the Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., as appeared in Christmas Club Magazine.

Somebody says, "Machines are so inhuman." Is that so? "Yes," robots, men handicuffed by the machine. Of course they are forgetting the man with the hoe. "Mere automatons it makes of men, tyrannous technicians."

Well, it is a nice thing to write about that village smithy, but I prefer sitting on a comfortable seat in a ventilated factory, manipulating a two-ton trip hammer with a little lever than swinging a 12-pound sledge hammer fourteen hours a day as Longfellow's village smithy swung it. And bear in mind, Longfellow, only wrote about that fellow; he didn't try swinging that hammer or he would have changed his tune.

They say it is very inhuman. The machine has done more to free men of arduous toil, to free men of slavery than all of the talk since Aristotle. That is a strong statement, but think it over. Christianity, with the message of Master ringing in its ears, for nearly 2000 years tolerated slavery, until the machine made that kind of labor uneconomic, and out it went. If some of these people who are criticizing the machine will follow me around the world I can show them some countries today where a form of slavery still exists, but only in places where they do not use the machine, where it is an interesting thing that as the line goes up representing the introduction of the use of machines on the farm the line of tenant farming, a form of slavery we no longer like to think about, goes down. What is it Oscar Wilde says? "Civilizations have always had to have slaves. Human slavery is degrading and debasing, therefore the future of the human race rests on the slavery of the machine." There is a poet with a sociological background and he is talking sense. Slavery persists today in many countries of the world where the machine is not used. The only thing the machine has done (and let me repeat) is that it has released millions from amount of wretched leisure, and is our business now to teach these men to use wisely this leisure for creative, cultural hobbies. If we do we will show the world such a renaissance as it has never had before.

Oh for the Days of Handicraft

Altruism has a very poor record in this matter of freeing slavery, but they say, "I like the old handicraft days. Oh, I love the handicraft days!" Great stuff if you don't read history. Nothing has ever been more over-glorified than handicraft. Two hundred years ago London was a handicraft town. I looked into that. The industrial workers there had "bride in their work" but "disease in their system," because they died at the rate of fifty a thousand then, and today the industrial workers in London, now that the country has been mechanized and sanitized and worked at from the technological point of view, have a death rate of eleven a thousand, which is about normal. Besides, the masters created, the hand-workers only copied and therefore were drudges, and doing it eighteen hours a day. Don't forget there was only one Hepplewhite. What were all the men doing who were making furniture? Copying the master; they were not artists at all. I looked into the matter of the shoemaker of England as late as 1810 who spent eighteen hours a day at his bench, eating three meals off his lap because he didn't have time to go to the table and didn't have any to go to. He was doing nothing more than the man on the line who is doing by finishing off the automobile designed by the master. This man is working eight hours a day five days a week; that fellow worked eighteen hours a day six and seven days a week—the only way he had to sustain himself. Half of all the labor in the baronial days ate their meals off their laps and slept on the floor because they had neither tables nor beds. I say we are making some progress.

I looked into the matter of original lace patterns when I saw all the women in Venice making lace with the spools on their knuckles, working twelve hours a day, most of them. I said to one of the women, "Do you enjoy this?" "Oh, no," she said. I found in company with Dr. Foccoloso, Professor of Archeology in the Imperial University of Rome, that in one century only three original patterns of lace came out in all Italy. What were all these women doing? Simply copying the designs of people who had an artistic sense for putting thread together in original form.

To say that all people who worked with their hands prior to the steam engine were artists is not only nonsense, it is elephantine nonsense.

What About Health Then and Now?

Somebody said, "I could like your machine but it makes people unhealthy." Well, I am not so sure about that. As a matter of fact I am sure it doesn't. I went to England for these figures because there is the best census in the world, all statisticians know it; you can find out how many of any thing there were in England for 150 years by going to the English census, and they are the most industrialized country in the world, for there are 45,000,000 people in the British Isles and only 3,000,000 farmers. If it made anybody sick it would do it in England. They import 57 per cent of their raw materials, export 47 per cent of their finished products, and import 71 per cent of all the food they eat; therefore they are industrial. They got hold of this thing we call an industrial revolution first, which only means a new chance for doing more work in less time and giving masses leisure. I found that the healthiest classes listed were the glue workers and the fertilizer factory boys.

Fellow Citizens:

From 1914 to 1918 the World War raged throughout Europe. America, though separated by two oceans, was the centrifugal force that decided the issues of war. At the end of this fearful struggle the defeated nations were involved in solving the perplexing problems of readjustment.

A wave of unsurpassed prosperity swept over the American continent. Their industries ran to capacity, producing and selling manufactured goods and the products of the land. It was followed by high credit inflation, an aftermath of the world war and of the income tax and the Federal Reserve bank amendment. The 1929 financial crash came as a natural consequence. Ever since, we have been struggling to emerge from financial chaos into a more sound and steady structure of finance and industry. These aims have been obstructed by hazardous New Deal panaceas of making fabulous appropriations for relief work, or rather for the chief administrator to spend as he sees fit.

Roosevelt's spectacular personality, being an expert showman, a magician and a great orator is largely responsible for his success. In this he fulfills the expectation of the masses. But behind all this is the fact that he knows all this is in the midst of a world revolution, and that the philanthropic side of the New Deal is in accordance with the demands of the times, the working classes and the white collar workers.

The New Deal is doomed to failure for the simple reason that the so-called abundant life and the standard of living can not be raised by production and distribution of more money unless that money represents increased production and distribution of goods.

Good will alone cannot solve our social and economic problems. Good Will and intellect should work hand in hand. Our social problems and relief work should be based on efficiency, cooperation, and impartial judgment.

Of the republics of today ours is the oldest. We shouldn't throw overboard the wisdom and experience that we have accumulated these last 150 years. No nation has ever had the heritage that we possess of liberty, equality, freedom of speech, press, private initiative. Its foundation is firmly imbedded in the Rock of Ages.

What can be done to save our country from the ravages of radical forces? Wouldn't it be possible for the Republicans to unite with the Democrats who are opposed to the New Deal, merging their forces into one democratic party and let the New Dealers form another party under whatever name they may choose?

Something should be done to offset the New Deal with its high taxation, its totalitarian state and dictatorship.

HELENA S. CHRISTIANSEN.

Fellow Citizens: To those who may have formed an unfavorable opinion of the senators and congressmen of the south who opposed the wage and hour bill, I want to say that people of the north know little or nothing of the way of life in the south. The real problem of these fine people is the colored man. A great many people of the north, both white and black, believe that the southern white man hates the Negro and mistreats him in every way possible. This is not so. The southern Negro lives better, is treated better, and is much happier than those of the north. In the north the Negro is forced to compete with the white man in both labor and business which sometimes creates a bad feeling, while in the south there is no competition between the two.

When darkeys may be heard singing in the cotton fields a mile away it isn't an indication that they are unhappy. The white man takes care of the darkey. The darkey knows this and is happy.

That you may become acquainted with some of the customs of the south allow me to introduce Mistah Bill the lumberman, a real southern gentleman, and Hamp Scott, a typical southern Negro. Mistah Bill on his way to the office in the early morning meets Hamp coming down the road. "Which way," inquires Mistah Bill. "Oh jes jorgen," said Hamp. "Well it appears to me like you have jogged your shoe soles off," said Mistah Bill. "Yassah, yassah," said Hamp. "You know I done had a job coming up down at da stove mill, but hit jes keeps on raining, an us can't git da timber out da woods." "Well," said Mistah Bill, "take this order and stop in at Mistah Reynolds store and get you some shoes, then go on over to my house I think the mistress has something for you to do."

Hamp gets his shoes and goes on over to Mistah Bill's house. He approaches the kitchen door just as his wife Mandy comes out with her white apron draped over a hot pan. Hamp's wife Mandy has cooked for Mistah Bill's family for a number of years. She has just finished with the breakfast and is on her way home with the hot pan filled with nice warm food for her own boys and girls. The definition for hot pan is known only in the south. It is usually a large pan about four inches deep and when being carried home by a southern mammy contains hot biscuits, butter and syrup, some nice fried eggs and several slices of home cured ham, all of this having been left over from the white folks' morning meal.

The mistress insists that the black mammy cook enough so there will be plenty left over for a bounteous hot pan and as three full meals a day is the custom in the south the three hot pans are sufficient to keep several little black boys and girls healthy and happy.

This custom was established and has been carried on since the Civil War or since the black man was freed from slavery.

These gentlemen from the south are afraid that the wage and hour law will destroy this old custom and that it will work out to a disadvantage to both the white and the black man.

They would be happy to live as they have in the past.

YOU AND YOUR Nation's Affairs

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities
Stanford University

Shortly before the adjournment of Congress the Senate Military and Affairs Committee, against the combined opposition of the War, Navy and Treasury departments, made public a report recommending legislation to distribute a certain amount of wealth in the event of war.

Briefly stated, the proposal was that every one having net wealth of $1,000 or more must buy government bonds, the purchases to range from 5 per cent of the net wealth in the case of those having only $1,000 up to 75 per cent of the net wealth in the case of those having $100,000 or more. The bonds, though redeemable at the government's option, were not to mature for fifty years, and were to bear an interest rate of not more than 1 per cent. In essence, therefore, the plan was a capital levy.

The Committee in advocating this plan must have had a political motive, because it is obviously impracticable. Where, it may be asked, are those who are to be compelled to buy government bonds to obtain the necessary funds? The obligation to buy bonds is based on the possession of net wealth, but most wealth is not in the form of cash, and it would be exceedingly difficult, therefore, to get the cash with which to pay for the bonds.

As an illustration, take the farmers. In the aggregate, they have an enormous net wealth, running up into many billions of dollars, but very little of it is in cash. Their wealth is in the form of land, buildings, machinery, tools, livestock, crops, etc. If they have pen to have cash on hand equal to 5 per cent of their net wealth, and can spare the money, their problem is met, but most farmers would be compelled to sell a part of their wealth to obtain the necessary funds. But who would buy? Confronted with a capital levy very few people would have surplus funds available for the purchase of farm property, and the decline in its value would be terrific.

The case of the farmer is typical. Everyone who did not have the applicable percentage of his net wealth in cash would have to sell or borrow. But from whom? With everyone digging down into his purse, sock, mattress, or savings account, as the case may be, to get cash, few would have funds with which to buy the vast amount of property and securities pressing for sale, and the result would be bedlam.

Moreover, how would net wealth be computed? Presumably on the basis of orderly conditions in the market, whether it be the stock, commodity, or real estate market. But the rush to sell would completely disorganize the markets, and reduce enormously the net wealth of the country.

When it became apparent that wealth could not be converted into cash without causing disaster, the government, if it persisted in the scheme, would have to take payments for its bonds in property or securities. And this would lead to government ownership of a large part of productive enterprise.

As General Sherman said, "War is Hell!" and we should leave no stone unturned to prevent it. But should war come to our shores, we would be foolish indeed to set about defending the nation by first completely disorganizing our economic life.

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

World Copyright 1938 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Mr. Roosevelt spoke vaguely the other night about a grand expansion of social security but did not discuss social security but did not discuss it will come out in time, and when it does it will make bigger headlines than the president's speech drew, because it will affect every household rich enough to employ a servant and every farmer of the moneyed classes who hires help.

It may come out directly in the social security advisory committee's report to the president next September 15; when he makes his recommendations to the next year, or possibly indirectly, as unofficially later when amendments are proposed in congress. The fact is the step has been decided upon by those who are guiding social security on the inside, and the method by which they choose to move will not make much difference. The move is assuredly under way.

The administration has been ducking it for three years. Announced reasons was the tremendous bookkeeping involved in trying to collect social security taxes from every wife and farmer able to employ help. The socializing securitists, however, have now worked out a scheme to take care of that difficulty, at least in its major application to domestic servants.

Each maid or washwoman would be given a book issued by the government with her number, maybe her picture, and identification. Then the government will sell SS stamps to the housewife, just like postage stamps, but probably not with anyone's picture on them, at least not any one who wants to be elected to office again, as this is an industry in which the employers outnumber the workers by about 3 or 4 to 1.

Each pay day, the maid would get out her book and require the housewife to place therein a stamp bought from the government. If the salary was $10 a week, the old stamp would be a 30 cent for the housewife. If extended to unemployment insurance, the housewife would put in another 30 cent for that, with no contribution from the maid. In any event it would not cost the housewife more than 60 cents per week for a $10 servant, that is, unless the taxes are raised later on.

Something like the same idea would be applied to farmers for itinerant help.

Thus will the New Deal in part be brought home to all.

NOTE—Or nearly all. Inner arrangements call for extension of SS also to employees of charitable institutions, but not to seamen or to government employees.

No one will be told that the government does not take this money and keep it for the old age or for the needy day of the washwoman, but spends it as fast as it comes in for bathhouses, cooling systems, salaries, mileage of congressmen and all the miscellaneous expense of government.

No one will say that this source of revenue will soon be the main reliance to keep the government going, or that when the payments come due the money may have to be raised all over again by other taxes or floating more debt. No one here is worrying primarily about that, possibly because all expect to be dead or beyond political retribution by the time the biggest bulk of the payments become due. And those whose money is thus in government custody cannot get excited about it because they know the government's ability to raise money is still better than, say, the Boston wizard of finance, Mr. Ponzi, who once tried a similar idea in a private way, and went to jail for it.

The social security advisory committee has held that this method of not keeping what is known as the "reserve fund" is all right. A sub-committee of the senate judiciary committee is studying the problem in hopes of finding a better way, but it may be safely said, as far as the spending element of New Deal officialdom is concerned, this way is all right with them.

Mr. R's equally vague reference to national health promotion probably will head up into a mere revival of the Wagner resolution directing a congressional investigation to be held on the idea of health insurance. The resolution died in committee last session.

Agriculture department is conducting a confidential special investigation of cash farm income for this calendar year. First fruits indicate it will be a billion less than last year when it was $8,600,000,000.

Brother Nate Straus, the national houser, is having trouble getting cities to take his money; is now out on a promotion tour. The cities apparently do not even want to put up 10 per cent for most of these projects.

Cotton payments are due to start this month, but probably not in Georgia where Senator George's opponent Lawrence Camp, the administration's No. 1 political problem, needs them most. First payments so far have been marked for Texas, Southern Alabama and Louisiana where the crop is harvested earlier.

NO LUCK

The nearsighted professor in English addressed the class to order, then addressed himself to the man he saw in the back of the room.

"You in the back there, what was the date of the signing of the Magna Carta?"

"I dunno."

"You don't? Then tell me, who was Bonnie Prince Charlie?"

"Well, then, tell me what the tennis court oath was?"

"I dunno."

"Listen, young man. I assigned these questions day before yesterday. What were you doing last night?"

"I was out drinking beer with some friends."

"Out drinking beer instead of studying? Then how do you expect to pass this course?"

"I don't. I'm just the plumber, and I'm fixing to repair the radiator as soon as you get through here,"—Santa Fe Magazine.
